Three day search for missing man ends; body found

An intensive three-day search ended Monday afternoon when a 78-year old Haliburton man was found dead in an area he had trapped for many years. Dead is Grenville Dart.

As a result of the search, involving about 40 civilians a day, police discovered the body about one kilometre from the roadway.

Dr. Harry Good, coroner, found Dart had died from natural causes and requested no post mortem or inquest.

According to police, Dart obtained a trappers licence on Friday and left his home at about 12:30 p.m. He then travelled one and a half miles from Fort Irwin in Harbun Township before parking his car along the roadway.

Apparently Dart had trapped this area for many years and was quite knowledgeable of the terrain. When he failed to return home that evening, the Minden OPP detachment was notified and the search began on Saturday morning. Involved in the search were officers from Minden, the canine department from Barrie, the force's helicopter from Toronto and many local residents.

Constable Jim Solway, search organizer, said Dart was found in dense brush and had just crossed through a swamp and over two windfalls.

He said it appeared as if night had started to fall and Dart had laid down to sleep.

The search was organized in a grid pattern with men lining up along the roadway and then heading into the bush on compass directions. Solway said the men kept within seeing distance to make sure no one wandered off from the rest of the search party.

After three days of searching, Dart was found at 4:15 p.m. on Monday afternoon.

Brakes fail on log truck, crash kills Bancroft man

A Bancroft man was killed last Friday when the logging truck he was riding in flipped over on its side on the Peterson road in Harcourt Township.

Dead is Edward John Musclow.

He was a passenger in the 1972 Chevrolet stake truck which was driven by Dennis Musclow, also of Bancroft.

The vehicle was travelling down a steep hill when the brakes failed. While trying to make a right hand turn, the truck went off the right side of the road and lost its load. It then came to rest on the

Resort owner gets injunction, launches suit for trespass

County expropriating land it says it owns

Faced with an injunction forcing its roads department to stop work on a section of Elephant Lake Road in front of Silver Springs resort, Haliburton County Council has decided to expropriate land it believes it already owns.

The expropriation hearing, expected to convene within the next few weeks, will end a dispute between the county and resort owner Dennis Waymouth dating back to 1978.

According to Waymouth, a survey of his property shows the county has a "road by prescription" that is limited to wheel tracks and a right-of-way. In 1978, when the county roads department began work to widen and improve the section of road in front of his property, Way-mouth gave his permission to install a retaining wall, but under protest that the county did not own the 66-foot road allowance.

Last fall, when road crews again began to work in the area, Waymouth said he protested, but the work proceeded. This spring, having engaged legal council, Waymouth won an injunction that brought the work to a halt and began a trespass suit.

At issue, according to the resort owner, is the future of his business.

"Virtually what the county is going to do by widening this road is put us out of business," he claimed in an interview.

Elephant Lake Road is used extensively by trucks taking material to or from the Martin

Lumber plant and Waymouth maintains improvements to the road are being carried out to serve the company's needs "at the expense of the biggest industry in the county, which is the tourist industry."

Cost of planned improvements is close to $400,000 but according to Waymouth, the plans do not meet MTC standards for sight distances, surface for the type of traffic, and noise levels in a residential area. An alternate route, which would see the Kennaway trail developed to handle traffic to and from the mill, would cost about $800,000, Waymouth said, citing a report prepared by a consultant for an earlier expropriation hearing.

Waymouth claimed he has sought without success to compromise with the county roads department. He proposed that the county buy out his operation entirely, but no agreement could be reached. He also proposed giving the county the property over which the road passes, in exchange for having the county move his house back from its present location overlooking the road. Included in that proposal, Waymouth said, was an underpass that would have allowed guests at his resort to reach the beach area without crossing the road surface.

The county offered $20,000 to subsidize moving the house and two cottages, Waymouth said, but refused

Legislation to expand role of local health unit

Proposed amendments to the Public Health Act that will put more emphasis on disease prevention and public health programs are expected to result in an expansion of the local health unit over the next five years.

Under the scheme, health units in communities throughout Ontario will be required to provide a number of core programs dealing with parental and maternal health, family planning and conception control services, infant health services, pre-school and school health services, adult and geriatric health programs, community mental health services, communicable disease control, dentistry, home accident prevention, environmental sanitation and nutrition.

Dr. D. E. Mikel, medical officer of health for the Haliburton, Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit, said in an interview Tuesday that "there are very few services that come under these core programs that we weren't involved in. However, there will be an increased emphasis on public health prevention" under the proposed amendments.

"I think the realization that it is better to shut the gate before the horse gets out than after is suddenly starting to get through to people," he commented.

The change in approach "will affect us," Mikel said. "We'll have to get more staff and we'll have to intensify our activities."

In the Haliburton area the emphasis would be particularly directed toward the elderly, he said.

The proposed changes call for local boards of health to develop a system for identifying "high risk elderly" and provide nursing assessment and referral as required. The health unit will also have to develop and implement a procedure for monitoring people identified as high risk elderly, and will have to collect data to determine trends and provide a tool for program planning.

The Health Unit will also be called on to expand its programs in a number of other health related areas, Mikel said.

He cited "the whole matter of alcohol abuse," which he said "has got way out of hand."

Health units will also have

Thieves damage Pharmacy, steal watches, cash

Over $2,300 worth of merchandise was stolen from Cauldron's Pharmacy in Haliburton Village on Sunday.

Apparently drugs, watches, money, lighters and many other items were taken from the store, located on the village's main street.

Later, $70 worth of the items, including watches and the cash box were found discarded in the village, but no arrests were made.

This is at least the third time the pharmacy has been broken into this year.

Abutting property owners expected to object Maple Lake road closure to test allowance policy

The provincial housing ministry will be asked to approve the closure of a portion of an original 66-foot road allowance in Stanhope Township despite the anticipated objections of abutting property owners.

The allowance, lying in front of Lot 27, Concession 6, on Maple Lake, fronts property owned by Hubert, Patricia and David Moss.

In April of this year, Victoria County Court Judge Roy Woods ruled the allowance in question is a public highway, and that abutting property owners Leon Dragon and Olgierd Cichowski "have the right to make whatever use this highway is capable of affording them."

The decision came after Olgierd and Cichowski complained the Moss family had erected a barricade on the road allowance to restrain the two from driving their vehicles across it to gain access to their cottage.

Judge Woods ruled the complaint was justified, ordered the Moss family to pay the plaintiffs' costs, and granted an injunction to restrain the Moss family from blocking the allowance.

Despite the decision, the Moss's approached Stanhope council in May of this year asking for support for an application to stop up the allowance to vehicular traffic. Township lawyer, James Cruickshank claimed the application was premature, however, since the Ministry of Housing had not announced its policy on closure of the original shoreline allowances, and advised council not to consider it.

Subsequently, Haliburton County council has agreed to a policy governing the closures of such allowances, and the Ministry of Housing has endorsed it with only minor changes.

The move opened the door for the Moss family to proceed with the closure application.

At its September meeting, Haliburton County council passed a by-law confirming that it has no objection to the application. Notice of Stanhope council's intent to pass the closure by-law at its November 12 regular meeting will now be advertised and posted for the next four weeks.

Stanhope clerk Gerald Bain said Monday that the Moss's have apparently discussed their request for closure with officials at the Ministry of Housing, and that there has been "some indication that favourable consideration will be given to it."

But at the May meeting of council, Olgierd and Cichowski made it clear that they would fight any attempt to close up the allowance, which they have used for access to their cottage since 1965.

J. C. Victor, lawyer for Drag and Cichowski attacked the Moss's claim that the allowance had to be closed because the court decision opened the door for it to be abused by the public.

Judge Roy Woods "decision says Moss cannot obstruct Dragon and Cichowski from using that allowance," Victor noted. "It does not say Dragon and Cichowski own it."

Under the terms of the Municipal Act, the owner of property abutting an unopened shoreline road allowance has full use and control of the allowance, although its ownership remains in the hands of the municipality.

Victor indicated that while the injunction meant Moss could not stop Olgierd and Cichowski from driving over the allowance it did not open the door for anyone to make use of it.

He also made it clear that his clients probably would object to any closure attempt. "You might as well know that the road may be a little more rocky than you contemplated," Victor said in May. "You might very well be met with obstacles at each of the stopping points."

Olgierd and Cichowski will have a chance to air their objections at the November 12 meeting. If council opts to pass the closure by-law, any objections to it must be forwarded to the Ministry of Housing, which will have final say in the matter.

The Haliburton and District Association for the Mentally Retarded sponsored an open house that gave ARC industries participants a chance to demonstrate their skills Monday night at the Lakeview Centre. Here program supervisor Bob McLagan shares a laugh with one of the participants. The open house drew more than 40 visitors.

Donations from school system close to $5000

Schools donate to 'Marathon'

The coffers of the Terry Fox Marathon of Hope Campaign are now almost $5000 richer thanks to the efforts of students, staff and officials of Haliburton County's school system.

Only days after the young runner's effort to job across Canada was cut short by the discovery that the cancer which had taken his right leg had spread to his lungs, students and staff at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School raised a total of $628 by donating $1 each to sign a get well message to Fox.

Students at the Senior Elementary School in Haliburton quickly followed suit, and through various projects, the youngsters raised $2,128.61 for cancer research.

And this week, with the submission of $2,072.56 raised by the staff and students at other county schools, members of the board and board staff, the total raised by the entire school system now stands at approximately $4,900.

Joan Fennell, board office secretary and co-ordinator of the Terry Fox fund on behalf of the board, said Monday that the challenge to raise money for the Marathon of Hope went out from a member of the board office staff to board trustees and the schools.

This week's donation was a

Indian art featured at Station Gallery

Excellent Indian artwork, from around the country is being featured at the Raily End Gallery in Haliburton Village, until this Sunday.

The native artwork show includes pieces from the private collection of the Ojibwe Cultural Foundation on Manitoulin Island. These paintings are not for sale since they are a permanent part of this collection.

Also included in the Ojibwe collection are woven wall hangings. One of the interesting paintings is painted on a deer hide by Martin Panick from Manitoulin.

Also on display, the Whetung Native Gallery from Curve Lake, north of Peterborough, has "Keena" sculptures and other craft articles offered for sale.

The Native Arts and Crafts Corporation has also added to the show by exhibiting limited edition prints, as well as mukluks, moccasins, dolls, wood carvings and a porcupine quill box.

The show will be open for the rest of the week in the gallery from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 12 noon to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Haliburton Minor Hockey Association started its week-long hockey clinic on Monday night. Youngsters from all age groups were learning good skating techniques and other hockey skills from instructor Ray Goulet. The evening sessions will continue throughout the week at Dysart et al community arena.

This section of Elephant Lake Road, just below Silver Springs resort, is slated for improvement primarily to handle the heavy trucks that use the road to get to and from the G.W. Martin Lumber Ltd. mill. Resort owner Dennis Waymouth is fighting the county's move to expropriate part of what he maintains is his property; the 66 foot wide strip over which the road passes.

Resort owner to fight expropriation plans

his request for the pedestrian underpass.

Charging the county has "no feeling for the tourist industry," Waymouth said he will fight the expropriation.

"They've pushed their way on something that they had to know was not right," he said, by claiming ownership of the 66 foot allowance "they knew they didn't have."

"They're not proceeding in the right manner and haven't done so for a number of years."

The county's engineer, Bill Obee, denied the accusations however. "I think the county has been very fair," he said in an interview at his Minden office. "He (Waymouth) certainly has been talked to."

Obee said the county has been upgrading the road since it acquired it from Dysart et al in 1973, and that shortly after Waymouth purchased Silver Springs in 1972, the county offered to buy him out for more than he paid for it, but the offer was refused.

In 1979, Obee said, the county again considered buying Waymouth out, and called in a professional appraisal.

er, who valued the resort at about $65,000. But according to the county engineer, the resort owner "came back with a figure roughly double the appraised value," and the matter went no further.

Although the county believes it has title to the 66 foot over which the present road passes, it has decided to let the courts settle the matter through an expropriation hearing, Obee said.

If the expropriation is granted (and Obee is confident that it will be) then a land compensation board will establish the value of the land and Waymouth will be paid that amount. The value is about $500, according to the latest appraisal, the county engineer said.

He disputed the contention that Martin Lumber was the sole reason the road is being upgraded. Some 900 cottagers on Elephant Lake, Benoit Lake and Harcourt park also use it for access to their properties, he said.

On the matter of an alternate route over the Kennaway trail, Obee said it would be "way beyond the financial means of the county." The grades would also be impossible, he said, with at least 4000 feet at least 10 percent up and an additional 4000 feet at least 10 percent down.

Although a complete engineering study of the area has not been done, Obee estimated it would cost "well in excess of a million dollars" to push an alternate road through the area.

"How many taxpayers are going to be happy if we spend that kind of money on a road when our total construction budget is about $800,000 a year?" Obee said.

As for the resort owner's contention that the plans for Elephant Lake Road do not meet MTC specifications, Obee agreed that they do not, but added that the MTC has approved the county's plans.

"There are cases where you cannot meet requirements within a reasonable amount of cost," he said. Surfacing the road with asphalt would "exceed our budget", so council agreed to "gamble on prime and surface treatment," to save maintenance costs.

The areas that have received the treatment have already stood up for four years, Obee said.

"It's doing the job, so if it does the job, what's wrong with it?"

As for the underpass, "we don't feel we can justify the cost," Obee said.

The engineer maintained that Waymouth was aware Martin Lumber's trucks used Elephant Lake Road when he bought Silver Springs in 1972. "We're not creating something that was not there before," he said. "I really have no sympathy for Waymouth and (Elephant Lake Lodge owner Bill) Smith because the mill was there."

"I think we've given him (Waymouth) a hell of a good shot, personally," Obee said. "If the road had been behind, and we'd moved it in front, we would be affecting his business." But because the road was already in its present location when the business was purchased, "I don't think we are."

Work on retaining wall in front of Silver Springs resort owner Dennis Waymouth's house was stopped this spring when Waymouth obtained an injunction against it. He is also suing the county for trespass. An expropriation hearing on the property in question is slated to take place in the next few weeks.

Galway/Cavendish minutes

At a meeting of Galway/Cavendish council September 20, the following matters were considered:

A by-law to regulate the running at large of dogs as reported by the Committee of the Whole was passed.

A by-law to amend By-law 78-43 was passed. This by-law is to rezone three parcels of land on Bottle Creek in Cavendish from open space to recreation residential, due to an error in the original mapping.

A by-law to amend By-law 78-43 was also passed. This by-law is to rezone a parcel of land owned by Mrs. M. Hickey from rural to recreation residential in Galway as requested in her rezoning application.

Severance B-171-80 (Mr. Westwater, Plan 5, lot 19, Galway) was supported as it conforms to the North Kawartha Official Plan and Zoning By-law 78-43.

Severance B-172-80 (Mr. W. G. Ray, Conc. 7, lot 28,

Council certified that Restricted Area By-laws 80-24, and 80-25, passed by council on the 20th day of September, 1980 are in conformity with the Official Plan of the North Kawartha Planning Area as approved and which was in force as of the date of passage of said By-laws 80-24 and 80-25.

to offer programs to teach people how to be parents, something that has come about "because of the fact that there are no more closely knit families where people get help from their mothers or their aunts or their grandparents," Mikel said.

He also cited the problem of single parents as an area on which the health unit will have to concentrate. Such people are often ill-prepared to look after their own affairs "let alone those of a family," the MOH said.

According to Mikel, there are "all kinds of public health problems" on which the unit staff will be concentrating in the near future.

"If we could change the behaviour patterns of people in Canada," there would be fewer lifestyle-related problems, such as high blood pressure, obesity and cigarette smoking, he said.

Mikel said that although changes in the Public Health Act are not expected to be passed until next spring, implementation and expansion of the core programs would probably take place before then.

"It's thought that (the changes) will increase the public health effort in the province by perhaps 20 percent, as far as staffing goes," the MOH commented.

"This isn't a huge amount of money that's being talked about," he said. About two percent of the total budget of the Ministry of Health goes to health units, and the total public health budget for the province is only two-thirds of the budget of Toronto General Hospital, Mikel said.

The Haliburton Kawartha Pineridge District Health Unit has a budget of approximately $1.5 million, of which 75 percent comes from the province. The remaining 25 percent comes from the coffers of Northumberland, Victoria and Haliburton Counties.

Mikel said senior staff of the unit would be meeting within the next few weeks to discuss the effect of the proposed changes on the unit, but he anticipated that most staff increases would involve nurses rather than public health inspectors.

joint effort by board trustees, office staff, principals, students and staff at Archie Stouffer, Dorset, Gooderham and Victoria Street Schools.

Students at the schools raised money in various ways, the fund co-ordinator said. At Archie Stouffer, students got funds by doing things for others. At Dorset school, students' donations were matched by the staff. Teachers at Gooderham

School held hot dog sales at lunch for a week and all proceeds went to the fund. And at Victoria Street, a general collection was taken.

In announcing the results of the fund-raising effort, Fennell noted that she was "proud to be submitting this donation of $2,072.56 to the Terry Fox Marathon of Hope fund on behalf of the Haliburton County school system and thank all those who so enthusiastically took up my challenge."

Accountability

In a little over a week, ratepayers in Haliburton County will know who among them intends to seek office in the upcoming municipal election. Candidates must file their nomination papers with municipal offices by October 20. The three-week campaign period leading up to election day will then be underway officially.

Although many of the seats up for grabs will be contested by more than one candidate, it is an unfortunate fact that many of them will also be filled by acclamation. And while some of those who will be returned to seats on municipal councils and the school board by acclamation have done a good job, some who are less deserving of public support will also be returned without a fight. And when that happens, the democratic process is sadly undermined.

Elections are costly in terms of both time and money, of course, but they are also the only opportunity the public has to pass judgement on the performances of those who were chosen to represent them two years ago. It is that very accountability which makes politicians servants of the public in Canada, while in many other countries those who wield power can do so without check or balance. But if the process of accountability is to be meaningful, voters must have a choice. That means that every seat up for grabs should be contested. And it means that more people in the community should be willing to let their names stand for office.

Municipal politics, as anyone who has served well in any public capacity can attest, is a time-consuming and demanding pursuit. The monetary rewards are small and the headaches many. But the rewards that come from having made a contribution to the life of the community can more than outweigh the problems that go with sitting on a public body.

If the citizens of this county are to govern themselves well, the best and the brightest among them must be willing to serve. And each of us has a responsibility to ensure that there are good candidates striving to attain every seat.

If you can't run for office, try to talk someone you know into doing so. It's the best way there is to ensure a healthy democracy.

Spending to save

Proposed changes to the Public Health Act currently under review are expected to add at least 20 percent to the cost of providing health services in the near future. Under the expanded program, more nurses will have to be hired and more money will have to be spent to provide public education programs. But before anyone is tempted to decry the changes as another example of the proliferation of bureaucracy and the waste of public funds, they should pause to consider the balance sheet. For the fact is that an effective public health program may end up saving taxpayers money in the long run.

Under the scheme, health units would be required to provide a broad range of services relating to public health matters within the community. In the case of the Haliburton unit, many of these services are already being provided. Prenatal and parenting classes, immunization clinics, nutrition and dental hygiene programs to name a few, are already offered on a regular basis. Other programs which may not yet be underway will have to be planned and brought to the public over the next few years. Each of them is designed to educate the public about health matters and to concentrate on the preventative steps individuals can take to lessen their chances of contracting diseases.

The proliferation of lifestyle related diseases such as hypertension, cardiovascular illnesses, strokes and even some cancers, is exacting a high toll on human life, and increasing the cost of health care in general. If, through education programs within the community, the incidence of these diseases can be reduced, the savings, by anyone's accounting, will be enormous.

Expanding the health unit's role on the community inevitably will require increased spending of taxpayers' dollars. But if the programs pay off the way those in the health care field hope they will, by reducing the number of serious health problems in the community, their cost will be more than justified.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

To the Editor:

No matter how much representatives of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce may wax righteous in indignant protest, their attempt to steer and guide the upcoming election into paths of their own choosing by means of an election questionnaire can only be viewed as a self-serving move, and a rather blatant one at that.

And for them to castigate Reeve Murray Fearrey for opposing their questionnaire, and by implication the other members of County Council, too, all of whom supported his stand, demonstrates a sad, naive and eyebrow-raising immaturity that the Chamber of Commerce and this county can well do without.

Intentionally or not the questionnaire with its Chamber-related topics would seem designed to create election issues on behalf of a Chamber of Commerce ticket in the upcoming municipal elections. We recall a similar problem faced by the Chamber during the last election two years ago when two of its directors as well as its manager all ran for elected office and, unintentionally or not, gave the appearance of the first step in a "Tammany Hall" move by the Chamber.

The Chamber may well feel it has a mandate to dig out and bring into focus what it believes to be election issues; far better it leave this to the professionals, the newspapers of our community and their staffs. Instead, the Chamber should pause to rethink its priorities, then concentrate its energies on those things it can do best and was, in fact, set up for: the promotion of our tourist industry/business community and the continuing vigilant representation of their best interests.

The reaction of the Chamber's representatives to Reeve Fearrey's remarks was thoughtless and petty. As a former president and director of the Chamber of Commerce I can assure one and all that year in, year out, if any one person can be considered responsible at the county level for the continued operation and funding of the chamber that person is Murray Fearrey. Time and again this has been the lone voice in the wilderness that somehow won over the opposition to allow the Chamber's continued operation for another year, a year it probably would not have had but for Mr. Fearrey's effective and outspoken pleading.

But, the Chamber's most ardent and effective supporter can also be its foremost critic when criticism is deserved. Quite simply, this is a case in point.

Yours truly,
Bill Foote,
R.R. 2, Haliburton, Ontario

Brandon, Manitoba will mark its 100th anniversary in 1982 and preparations for the celebration of this historic occasion are well underway. One of the major functions of the year will be "Homecoming", designated for the period July 3rd to 11th inclusive, and the Centennial Committee is now in the process of establishing a register of persons who formerly resided in the city of Brandon. Through the courtesy of your newspaper, we would ask any ex-Brandonites in your area to send their names and addresses to us so they may be placed on our Homecoming mailing list. Such correspondence should be addressed to the Brandon Centennial Committee, P.O. Box 1982, Brandon, Manitoba, R7A 6A3.

Thank you.

Yours truly,
[Mrs.] Eva M. Campbell,
Chairman,
1982 Brandon Centennial Committee

To the Editor:

I sincerely hope that the Canadian Railway Transport Commission has not granted permission to Canadian National to abandon the Lindsay-Haliburton line.

Hearings were held recently in Lindsay and Haliburton at which many local municipalities argued forcefully for its retention, particularly as there is a great potential for mining in northern Victoria and Haliburton counties.

One large mining company has been prospecting for two years, and has bought an option on 5,000 acres. There are others. Naturally they would cease operations unless rail facilities were available.

The service beyond Kinmount was stopped as the result of a wash-out in 1978. CN sent a representative (not a professional engineer), and one diver to assess the damage, who reported that it would cost $75,000. to repair. The County hired a firm of engineering consultants who sent an engineer and two divers. Their estimate was closer to $15,000., possibly less.

The Minden Times of September 24th, reveals that the Township of Somerville had approached CN five years ago to buy the Kinmount station. They were told by CN that it would first be offered to Parks Canada.

This suggests to me that CN had long ago decided to abandon the line, regardless of their promise to set their marketing experts to work to attract more traffic.

With the energy crunch, much shipping of bulky and heavy material could be diverted from road transport at much lower cost. Forest products from the Haliburton area could be shipped cheaper to their market.

Conceivably a weekend passenger service from Toronto to cottage country would be feasible. More jobs would be available in several sectors.

Is this the same CN that boasts "a responsibility as well as a business?"

Yours very truly,
Chris Wahlroth,
Toronto, Ontario

It's October once again and that time of the year when most sport fans get a disease which is more commonly known as World Series Fever. Many people who couldn't care less about baseball during the regular schedule and who did not likely even look at the standings let alone the batting averages of the players, all of a sudden become avid fans. For the real followers of the game, meaning those sport fans who can give you certain players' batting averages right off the top of their heads or tell you how many wins and losses a certain pitcher has up to this time, you can count on the fact that they follow the game very closely all summer long. The other fans who can take the game or leave it really don't get that interested until the playoffs and the World Series begin, in other words, when that time comes around when all of the marbles are on the line. If you were like myself and most other Canadians I am sure that you were disappointed last Saturday when the Montreal Expos, who had given everything they had, lost their division title by just two games. It was hard for me to believe that the Expos, who just seemed to be reaching their peak, should lose those first two games to the Philadelphia Phillies. I know that I must have been like thousands of other baseball fans who all took a great interest in the team and during the last couple of weeks when the team was coming down the stretch in search of the pennant my interest in the Expos and baseball seemed to grow every day. I found that it was hard for me to get away from the television on those evenings when the Expos games were on the tube. I am certainly anything but a television addict but on several occasions just recently I found myself hanging in there on every pitch with the dream that the Montreal Expos would be in the World Series. We would like to join with all of their fans to congratulate the Expos who gave it a gallant try and went right down to the second last day of the regular schedule before being nosed out by the Phillies. The Expos seemed to garner a great deal of support and a large following of fans with their come-from-behind wins which they seemed to be able to come up with game after game. In the final three-game showdown with the Phillies I thought that the Expos would have the decided edge as they were playing the three games in their own park at the Big O in Montreal. This at the time before the series began seemed to be the case, until one looked at the season's play which shows that the team from Philadelphia won the last 20 games out of 26 that they have played on the road. I still think that when all is said and done that the New York Yankees of the American League will win the World Series.

"The annual 'Flowers of Hope' campaign organized by the Haliburton and District Association for the Mentally Retarded is well underway. By this time, everyone in Haliburton County should have received their yellow envelopes in the mail containing crocus bulbs. We hope that you will mail back your contribution as soon as possible. The objective of the local association is to include provision of services, where it is feasible for the identified retarded persons in Haliburton County.

A sample of the drinking water at Dover's Spring near Haliburton was taken recently and sent to the Ministry of Health, Laboratory Services Branch for the bacteriological examination of the water. The report which arrived back on September 29 shows that the water is listed as satisfactory for drinking.

This Friday will be the beginning of the Thanksgiving weekend. If it runs in the pattern of the past several years this weekend should see hundreds streaming by car and bus to the Haliburton Highlands to get one last look at the leaves in all of their glorious color. Many will be taking this opportunity to lock up the cottage until next year while others will be coming home to the Highlands to visit friends and relatives. Whether this is your first visit or just one of many to the beautiful Highlands we sincerely hope that you will enjoy your weekend. We will just have to hope that we will have nice weather for the occasion.

Report from Queen's Park

by MPP John Eakins

I disagree with those who feel that there is no need or urgency for constitutional change. The longer this is put off, the more Ontario stands to lose at the expense of other provinces. This debate is not something which has suddenly surfaced. It has been ongoing not for years, but decades, and perhaps the time has come, as suggested by Joe Clarke, that persons other than the premiers be involved in speaking out for Canada.

Why do we need to amend our constitution? One reason is that the BNA Act is so vague that the provinces are taking advantage of its weakness and actually dividing Canada into a number of separate countries, and Ontario is the big loser. There is a need to promote the concept of inter-provincial co-operation and a need to ensure that regional development strategies are complimentary to each other rather than competitive. We must eliminate inter-provincial barriers to trade man-power mobility and develop a true Canadian common market which serves the economic interest of all regions at the present time, the provinces are building fences to shut out Canadians. Many licensing regulations forbid Canadians to move from province to province.

If a labourer wants to move from Victoria-Haliburton to Newfoundland and get a job in the oil industry, he probably will not get one because their government has established a registry of workers which gives Newfoundland workers first preference on those jobs.

If you want to purchase shore front property in Prince Edward Island, you cannot do so unless you are a resident of that province. If a company in Ontario submits the lowest bid for the sale of anything in British Columbia, you will miss out unless your bid is 10% lower than the lowest bid from a British Columbia company.

Also in the province of Quebec, construction workers from Ontario cannot find employment.

These are only a few simple examples of the way provinces have split Canada in recent years into ten separate fiefdoms. It is now claimed, that there are more barriers to trade than there are among the countries of Europe. The traditional understanding that Canadian citizens all have equal access to the country's bounty and physical beauty and job opportunities from coast to coast just doesn't apply any more.

This then in my view is one of the major problems facing Canada. A problem so serious according to some top Ottawa and Ontario officials that it surpasses the Quebec problem because it threatens not just the separation of a single province, but the complete disintegration of the country.

Our BNA Act is very vague when compared with what the United States, India, and Australia have, where trade, commerce and intercourse, throughout their territories is free.

Perhaps one of the problems is that many people today do not fully understand or appreciate the implications of the constitutional talks. If we sit still and do nothing about it and turn our back on this need, then Canada and especially Ontario will be the big loser.

Recently I spoke on the fate of confederation to the Rotary Club of Lindsay. If you would like a copy of my remarks, I would be pleased to provide a copy. Simply phone my constituency office and they will look after it for you.

Report from Parliament

The escalation of the Iraq/Iran border war is threatening to plunge Canada and the United States into our third major energy crisis in less than ten years.

This latest threat to our offshore sources of crude points up once again the vital necessity for energy self-sufficiency in Canada, and for a national energy policy that would remove, or at least minimize, the impact on Canada of political instability in other parts of the world.

In the last few days the war has centred on the ports of Basra in Iraq and Abadan in Iran, from where oil produced by the two countries is shipped via the Persian Gulf to the rest of the world, including Canada.

Canada imports 30 percent of its crude oil requirements, a large part of which comes from Iraq and a lesser amount from Iran. We can get along without the Iranian oil, but if our present imports of Iraqi oil are curtailed through destruction of Iraq's oil refineries, or closure of the Persian Gulf ports, then Canada could be in serious trouble.

Fortunately, this latest crisis comes at a time when there is a surplus of foreign oil stored in Western countries.

After that is used up, and if the oil has not begun to flow from Iraq again within the next couple of months, then fuel rationing in Canada is virtually a certainty.

This situation imposes a serious responsibility on the federal government, one that will require a re-examination of its present priorities, and a reversal of its policy of confrontation between Ottawa and our oil-producing provinces.

Prime Minister Trudeau must set aside, at least for the moment, his plans to force Constitutional reform through parliament. As I have said before, his timetable is unrealistic, and his methods are open to question.

In light of the continuing uncertainty as to the availability of offshore crude oil supplies, parliament should be concerning itself right now with the question of what we can do to reduce Canada's dependency on any and all foreign energy sources.

An early oil-pricing agreement between Ottawa and Alberta and Saskatchewan is a logical and necessary first step in getting oil flowing at an adequate level from our own sources, and in getting the Oil Sands projects back on track.

Afterwards, all parties in the House of Commons, all provincial governments, and sufficient experts from the private sector are going to have to get together and work out an energy program that will eventually shield Canadians from the effects of events that occur thousands of miles from our shores.

In the face of these and other serious problems facing Canada today I cannot give a very high priority to Constitutional reform.

Bill Smiley

As a Canadian, what is your favourite holiday in the year? Think carefully, now. (No objection to Yanks playing the game.)

Originally, our holidays had religious overtones. Hence, the term holy days: Christmas, Good Friday, Thanksgiving.

Then we developed patriotic -- or, if your prefer -- political holidays. These include such stirring times as Dominion Day, now better known as the First of July; British Empire and Commonwealth and The Queens Birthday; Armistice or Remembrance Day.

Finally, we have a few pure pagan holidays tossed in: Labor Day, Civic Holiday and New Year's Day.

Well, let's start at the bottom, and eliminate. Civic Holiday has no significance whatever. It's the day on which everyone gets out of town for the weekend, except the local merchants, who are supposed to get a civic holiday, but spend it working like mad at the service club carnival, raising money for some worthy cause. It isn't even a national holiday. Big city stores ignore it.

Labor Day, as we all know, far from being a tribute to organized labor, is a day on which nobody does a tap of work, except for getting their kids ready for school, or closing up the cottage.

The next in insignificance is difficult to choose. We have Dominion Day, of course. Once it was a day of horse races, picnics, boat excursions, and speeches in the park. Now it is merely a day which annoyingly, doesn't always fall on a Monday or Friday.

And we have that whatever-it-is Day in May. It used to be Queen Victoria's Birthday. In the morning trees were planted. For the rest of the day, and night, you burned your fingers on fire-crackers and your eyebrows on Roman candles. I guess what we're supposed to do now is sit around and think of our Commonwealth brother in Zambia and Senegal, or the Queen, whose birthday is in another month, or something? What we actually do is open the cottage, or go fishing.

And then of course, there is New Year's Day. Hangovers and broken resolutions. Actually, New Year's depends on how fervently you first-footed it on the preceding eve. It can be as bleak as a beverage room, or as ram-bunctious as a rooster. But ahead of it there lie three cold, dark, dreary and deadly months of winter.

The two saddest holidays of the year are Remembrance Day and Good Friday. And, appropriately, they come at the most dismal times of the year.

On Nov. 11th the sky weeps, the widows and mothers weep, the flags droop at half-mast and the bells toll. The only joint in town that jumps is the Legion Hall. After the solemn rites have ended, old cronies gather to exchange lies, enjoy good food and drink, and listen to the inevitable speaker trying to convince them it was all worthwhile.

Eakins, Conway

want funding review

John Eakins, MPP for Victoria-Haliburton has joined with Sean Conway, MPP for Renfrew North and Liberal health critic, in calling for a legislative investigation of the funding of public hospitals in Ontario.

Conway served notice that when the house reconvened Monday, he and the rest of the provincial Liberals would demand an immediate investigation of the effects of government restraint on public hospitals.

Conway has said the hearings should be undertaken by the Social Development Committee and should begin not later than the end of October.

Conway said he is "alarmed" at what he termed the "crisis in confidence" that has developed over public hospitals and their ability to meet communities' needs.

He said the legislature has a duty to investigate the matter and that it should be "a top priority" in the fall session of the legislature.

Good Friday is gloom, darkness and bitter wind, remnants of snow drifts. A day of death, sacrifice and sorrow. Cold, cold and the earth is dead and frozen.

Christmas is another thing. A season of peace and joy on earth with goodwill toward men, according to the ads and the interminable carols. But, let's be honest. By the time the day has arrived, you are baffled, bushed and broke.

That leaves nothing else but Thanksgiving. That's my choice, every year. It's the best Canadian holiday.

First, there are the physical delights. Weather is usually fine -- brisk and bright. Scenery is magnificent: blue, bronze and crimson. Blood bubbles in the veins. Fire feels good. Food tastes like never before. Lungs lap clean air. Sleep is sweet, smooth and as dreamless as whipped honey.

And then there's the thanksgiving itself. Thanks for good health. Thanks I'm alive. Thanks for children. Thanks for a good harvest, or fat beef, or a steady job. Thanks for a chance to go on living through another year of those other holidays until I can say thanks again.

MNR wants to know results earlier

Deer licence changes announced

Ontario's wildlife managers are going to try to get the results of this year's moose and deer hunts much earlier than in the past, Ontario Natural Resources Minister James Auld announced.

To accomplish this, the sale of moose and deer licences by non-government licence issuers will be stopped prior to the end of the season.

Hunters will not be able to buy moose licences after October 31, 1980, and deer licences after November 30, 1980, from outside licence issuers.

However, hunters will still be able to purchase both licences at Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources district and regional offices, as well as at the Ministry offices in Toronto, until the end of the open season.

These earlier cut-off dates have been imposed this year as a step in the improved deer and moose management programs.

This means that the Ministry will be able to obtain the licence copies from issuers sooner and begin sampling in the annual mailed surveys earlier than before. The results of the surveys will, therefore, be available much earlier, so this data can be considered when making management plans and decisions for the coming season.

In addition, the move will lessen the enforcement problem caused by the practice of individuals who hunt without a licence, shoot a moose or deer and then buy a licence.

Teams spent total of 84 minutes in penalty box

Huskies drop opener to Parry Sound

The Haliburton Huskies got their first taste of competition as a Junior C club Friday night at the Dysart arena and the game proved to be a penalty-filled contest that took almost two and a half hours to play.

Whether it was the new face mask rule that brought elbows and sticks up or simply the tension of a season opener before a home town crowd of better than 250, the 47 minutes in the box, but still wound up well out in front when the final buzzer sounded.

The Huskies were at full strength for just 18 seconds before an elbowing call sent Brian Lloyd off for two minutes.

Parry Sound was unable to take advantage on the power play, however, and on a subsequent one-man advantage when the Huskies' Dean play of their own, Parry Sound's captain Jeff Barks put one by the Huskies' Craig Wood on a single-handed effort for the first score of the game.

With the teams back at full strength briefly, Parry Sound defenseman John Fish connected for another unassisted goal at 10:04 to move his team out in front 2-0.

Neither team managed to score for the rest of the period, despite a number of power play opportunities for both sides.

At 7:31 of the second, the Huskies again had a power play opportunity, but Parry Sound managed to turn it around as Barks connected for his second short-handed goal of the game, once again unassisted.

The Huskies had two more power play advantages in the period, but were unable to capitalize. At 19:54, Parry Sound's Barks got his third of the game, once more unassisted.

Both teams traded advantages in the third frame as high sticking, elbowing, holding, cross-checking and charging calls rained down from the referees.

At 18:55, with the Huskies' Lloyd in the box on a charging call, Parry Sound got its power play to click, slipping one by the home team's netminder to move ahead 5-0.

The visitors' shutout was ruined with just two seconds left to play however, as the Huskies connected on a power play. Ron Yake got the Huskies lone marker, assisted by Kevin Shapiera and Mike Rae.

Final score was Parry Sound 5, Haliburton 1.

Next home game for the Huskies is this Sunday at 4 p.m. when they'll square off against Midland.

Home team couldn't capitalize on power play

Huskies racked up 37 minutes in penalties as a result of chippy play and close calls by the referee. Parry Sound fared even worse, racking up

At Clayton's store, part of the past lives

Jack Clayton and his son

The shelves hold just about everything

Established in 1882, it was destroyed, rebuilt

Clayton's store in Dorset has been in the same family for nearly 60 years and the business is still going strong. When David Wesley Clayton purchased the store back in 1922 he probably never thought it would remain in the Clayton name for at least 58 years.

Established in 1879, the store had changed hands five times before David Clayton bought it. The initial owners, until 1882 were Thomas Ball and James McKey and then for the next four years H. Parkinson owned it. In 1888, Lawrence and Delancet purchased the store and ran it for only two years before selling out to Newton Langford. Langford ran the store until 1907 when it was destroyed by fire. He then rebuilt the present store and operated it until 1912, when Ed Speers purchased the operation.

After 10 years in business Speers sold out to David Wesley Clayton who ran the business until 1964, when he turned it over to his son Jack.

During those years, the outside of the store has changed very little except for the roof structure. In 1922 the store had the traditional 'false front' which has been re-constructed into a more-modern slanted roof.

The store has also expanded since those early days when all the needs of the settlement were housed under one roof; now Clayton operates a hardware store and marina next door.

Jack Clayton, the present owner, is quite at home in the store where he has spent most of his years. Clayton, who still shows slight signs of a bout with polio in 1929, has stuck with the general store because of the small community location.

"You've got to have a little of everything," Clayton says.

From the looks of things the general store tradition will be continuing on into another generation since Clayton's son has returned from Denver to manage the store.

'You've got to have a little bit of everything'
Jack Clayton says

Inside you can find everything from snowshoes to fresh baked goods on display. When the store was first purchased, Clayton said there were two counters, one down each side with most of the goods stored behind them.

In those early years and up until 1974 the post office was located in the back of the store, "right where the vegetable counter is," Clayton said. Both he and his father acted as postmasters and when the new building was erected across the street, Jack Clayton continued on as post master.

Before the turn of the century, Clayton said the post office used to jump from one side of the street to the other, depending upon which political party was in power.

During the past few years, Clayton has been conscientiously seeking out old photographs and post cards of the Dorset area and having them reprinted by a photography studio. These photos are now framed and hang along the posts and beams of the old store.

Included in the pictures are the old steam ship,

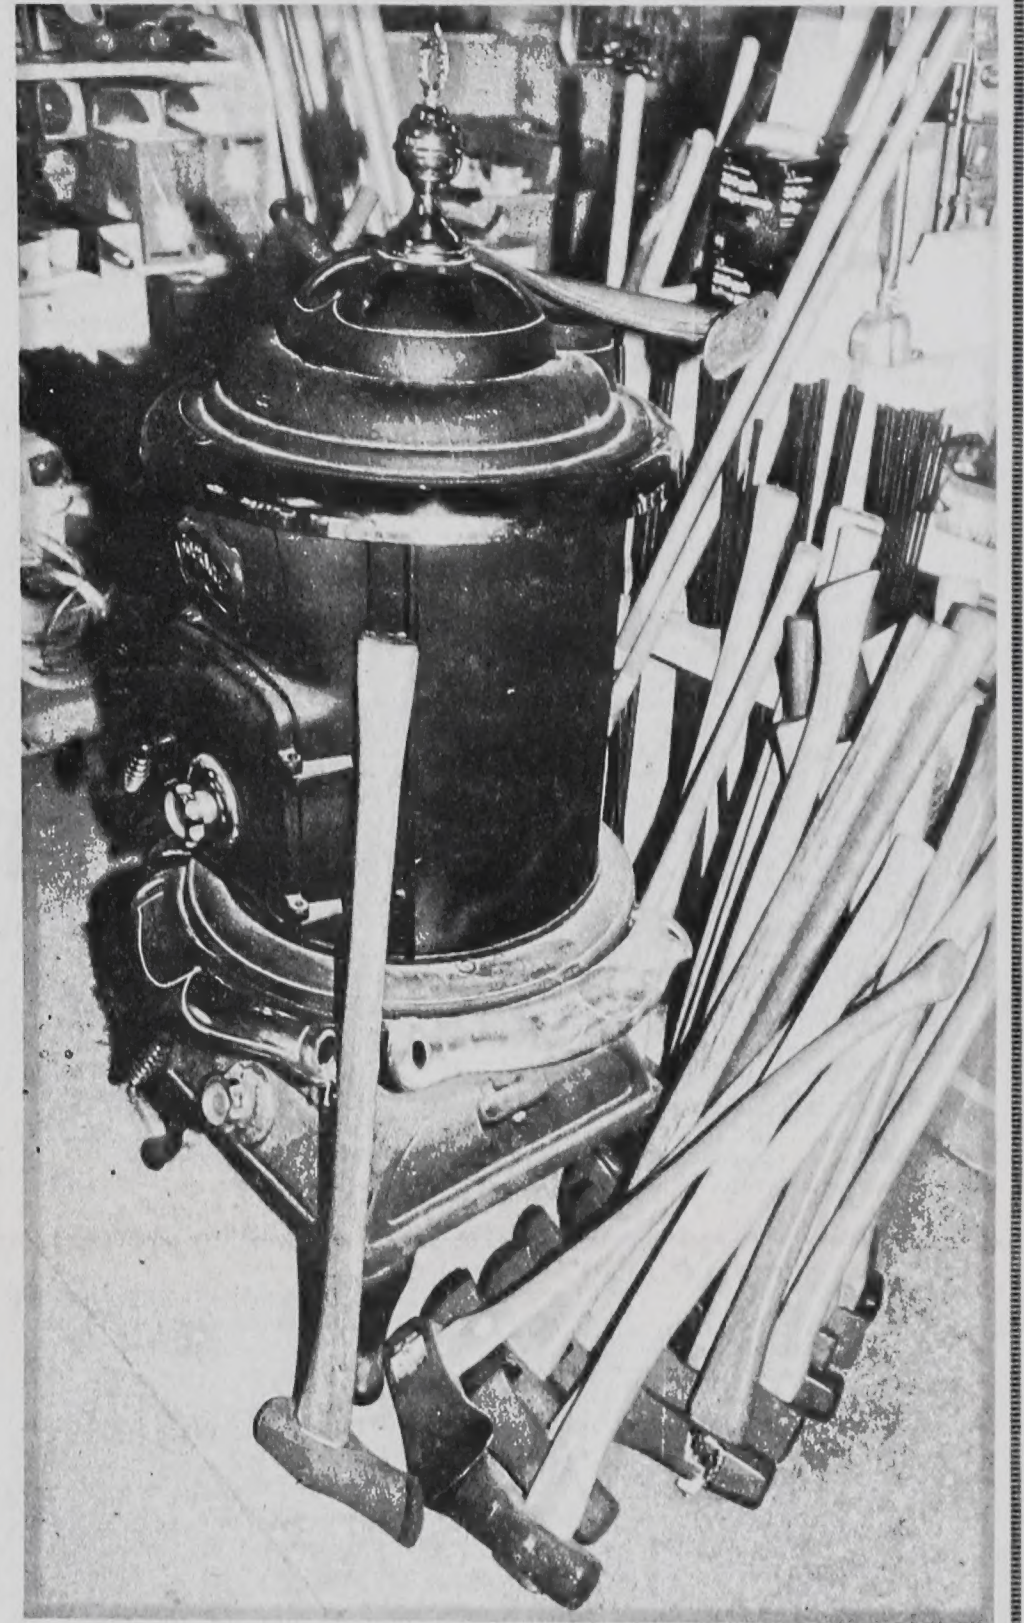

The Iroquois, which used to service Dorset, pictures of the Alvira Hotel which burnt to the ground in 1927, pictures of successful deer hunts and fishing trips, various photographs of the townspeople and some of the people who lived there in the early years.

The pictures add to the atmosphere of the old-time general store especially when Clayton begins talking about the people in the photos.

This time of year, with winter approaching, Clayton is busy ordering in many new pairs of snowshoes and harnesses for his customers.

Stained glass window echoes days gone by

Hardware and marina used by the 'Iroquois'

Storefront

The main store seems to have a good selection of grocery items including fresh vegetables and a meat counter. In the far back corner, the meat counter boasts freshly cut meat and the sides of meat hanging in the cooler guarantee it.

The cooler door is made of beautiful hardwood and was installed "about 30 or 40 years ago by Sinclair Russell down by Carnarvon," Clayton explained.

This year, the store is also receiving fresh baking from the bakery in Haliburton. This new addition was quite successful this summer, Clayton said.

In contrast to the groceries, work gloves are piled in boxes with work clothes hanging from racks and the old familiar yellow work boots are on the shelves. In the same area of the store, running shoes hang on nails that have been pounded into a pole for display purposes.

'There have been a lot of changes'

Next to the work boots, many different colours of yard are displayed and a little further down a hot plate is for sale with gas lanterns lining the front picture windows.

Underneath the work glove display, there is almost every colour of thread with many other sewing necessities for sale. A little further to the right, souvenir flags and sunglasses are waiting to be picked up by Dorset tourists.

Near the baked goods counter there are hunting knives for sale as well as the latest paperback books. The snowshoes are hanging in the front windows with the harnesses adorning the beam

In the future, Clayton says they would like to join the old store to the hardware store which is located about 15 feet away.

The hardware and marina at one time was the building used by the steamship Iroquois. Upstairs, the purser of the ship had his residence and downstairs there were two additional bedrooms, freight storage and a waiting room for the Iroquois' passengers.

The building sits on the edge of the Dorset Narrows and the Iroquois used to dock beside it.

Now that the building belongs to the Claytons, it houses just about every kind of nail imaginable, propane barbeques, fishing baits, paint supplies, axes and many of the other hardware necessities that Dorset residents might need. Outside, the hardware store, the Claytons also sell propane gas and canoes. They also offer boat storage to their marina customers.

Upstairs in the building, the beautiful wood and the stained glass window tell stories of days gone by. The purser's residence has remained basically the same since the area is now just used for storage.

"There have been alot of changes, but you don't think about them," Clayton said as he looked around the inside of the hardware store.

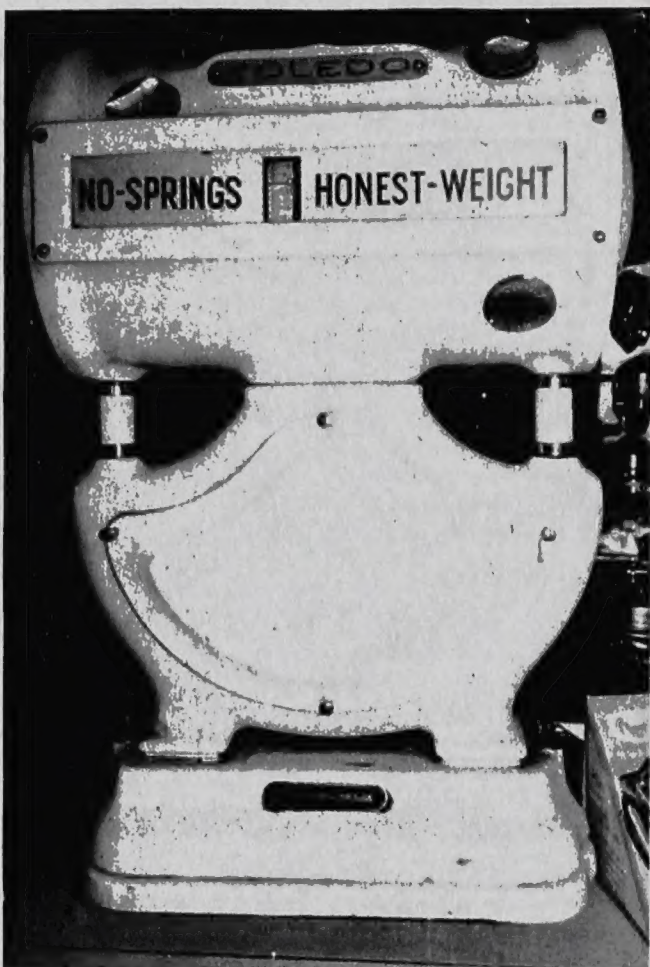

When the building was still being utilized by the Iroquois, passengers could leave Dorset at 6 a.m. and travel through the Lake of Bays to Portage. At Portage they would travel to North Portage on the Portage Flyer, a small steam locomotive. Then, they would be picked up by the Algonquin, another steamship, and would be transported to Huntsville.

Clayton said the passengers could leave at six in the morning, spend four or five hours in Huntsville and return home on the same route by nine that night.

Although it is now only about a half hour drive by car, the trip seemed fairly efficient for the times.

In the early years, everything had to be shipped into Dorset on the Iroquois, including all supplies and even the mail.

Although Clayton recalls these earlier days when Dorset seemed like a boom town with the logging industry, he knows they are gone. But he has saved a little of the past in his store and his pictures.

Extensicare News by Dr. W. O. Anderson

Monday mail brought some crown vetch which we promptly planted along the back fence hoping it will retard any possibility of that bank eroding further. In addition it will take all the small stones we pick to make miniature stone fences to halt the wash. There is still not enough stones but the bank is holding. What we have already been planting is simply crown phlox, another excellent ground cover.

This also was the day of the shots against the 'flu', that are probably better taken than not. As to benefit, no one can be sure there is any, an instance where we must rely on medical science, and even they are not sure except for theory.

Very early Tuesday we were awakened early and presented with a couple of dozen strawberry begonia plantlets to set out which we did before breakfast. They are a very attractive plant for hanging, but unlike most begonia it does not seem to be very keen on flowering. Now we will be somewhat overstocked with them without bringing another wheeled planter into use and that takes up precious room.

Next chore on the list were the parsley plants of which we had quite a supply. Three were potted in the hope we could cultivate the plants in the winter to give us a supply of the fresh greens. The rest were cut off with the intention to dry them for winter - over half a garbage bag full.

Bingo took our attention in the afternoon with Pat Burk doing all the work except calling which was ably done by Ray Smith alternating with Allan Macklin. Volunteer helpers are getting hard to get, but the game went off quite nicely.

The use of green manure is not favoured any more here than anywhere. If any garden debris is lying about there is a truck waiting to cart it away to the dump. People cannot believe that everything that is taken from a garden is really soil. A tomato that is picked arose from the soil assisted by the sun and leaves. Nothing was added to the soil but the carbon dioxide of the air, therefore is that ripe tomato really only soil, made delicious by the plant chemistry. The melons we harvested got their nutrients from all the quack roots we could find to put under the plastic, the best melons formed from where there was a greater mass of quack root, and now that all is taken up there is no surviving quack. Still it is going over the fence. We eventually could be proved wrong by the indiscriminate accumulation of disease in the soil, disease bacteria and pests, a risk that we fell is justified. Should we keep on doing it or should we not?

Twenty years ago car makers had a big decision, big or little. The Japanese decided small and won, while the U.S. decided big and still think big.

There is a tremendous amount of the world's precious energy being wasted in that middle east war and worse still many healthy youths are dying in battle. There are those in authority that have decided that it is worthwhile. Who is right?

Canada should find work for all of those idle unemployed to do. Work has never been known to do harm and most physicians will agree that disease will work out quicker than it will rust out and with less risk. From the beginning of evolution billions of years ago, that tiny thread of living descent destined to be human has thrived on work. Those persons that we call handicapped, would soon become less handicapped if they could be assured that they need not live out their lives in idleness, and they would be happier.

We finally made it when our musk melons were served to us as a noon dessert and were they sumptuous, just as nice or maybe more so than those that are bought. Maybe they will now become popular enough that we will have some help in their culture next year. We now know how.

Charlie Stormer, our carpenter helper and boss had considerable help in finishing a few more of those magazine holders. They are still in demand.

This civil service strike is a puzzle. They have been offered a substantial increase in pay which is claimed to be not enough but the strike committee will not take a vote on it possibly expecting this strike will escalate into a general strike.

Again on Thursday evening we were lucky to have Nancy Picard and Peggy Neville with us to give another medley of our old time favourite songs, Nancy at the piano and Peggy voice. It was enjoyable and thank you ladies.

Jim Cooper of the Gideons International in Canada led us in the Friday morning devotional period, and Margaret (Syd) Sisson, played the piano to our singing. This was the Thanksgiving service taken from Deuteronomy, Ch. 8, in which God is exhorting Moses even after his 40 years of wandering in the desert seeking the promised land, to be faithful. We must remember, God is the almighty giver, and in all things we must give thanks. Incidentally we recommend Deuteronomy as interesting readings for anyone.

There were three movies in the afternoon, Ray Smith projectionist. 1. Wild lands our heritage, Dan Gibson cinematographer. We were very glad Dan was between

by Carole McLean

Occasionally, I am reminded that not everyone is aware of the Guild or how becoming a member can benefit each one. I was reminded of this fact when at a recent pottery session I was called upon to explain to a new member exactly what those benefits of the groups within the Guild.

If you are not a member of any particular group within its boundaries but are still a member, you are entitled to any workshop conducted at the Gallery which is stated workshop for other Guild members simply be contacting Debbie Bates at the Gallery at 457-2330.

The Gallery, is the home of the Guild of Fine Arts and on its premises exists an extensive library known as the fee and because the Guild as well as its subsidiary, the Gallery, are solely operated by volunteer help you will also be asked from time to time to donate your services in one form or another. It is still a very small price to pay to be a Guild member, so view studio every Monday evening from 6:30 - 10:00 p.m., Wednesday from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Wednesday evening from 6:30 - 10 p.m. Although classes are somewhat smaller this fall session, we are already turning out some fine pieces. It is really rewarding to see the enthusiasm of the new members. It's what every group needs to keep it operating efficiently, the stimulation of ideas between the experienced potter and the new and eager pupil.

"Weavers and Spinners"
This group will be holding their meetings on the second Tuesday of each month at the Gallery. If you're interested in joining contact Judy Chapman 489-2675.

"Wearable Weaving"
This impressive title heralds a unique show put on by our own weavers and spinners group as well as well-known weavers from the surrounding area.

The show itself will be opening with a fashion show on Wednesday, October 15, and Thursday, October 16 at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $2.00 and will be available at the Gallery or from members of the group.

Also in conjunction with the show will be a "Free" workshop on Wednesday, October 22, 9:30 a.m. to 4:40 p.m. at the Gallery. Instructor will be Judy Chapman. The workshop will be entitled "Trouble shooting" and will include how to plan a project, calculate your requirements, steps in dressing a loom, how to read drafts, and a question and answer period.

Also Mary Wallace will be giving a one-day workshop in coiling and basket weaving during the exhibition; date to be announced.

These are free to Guild members but open to public at a fee. For particulars contact the Gallery at 457-2330.

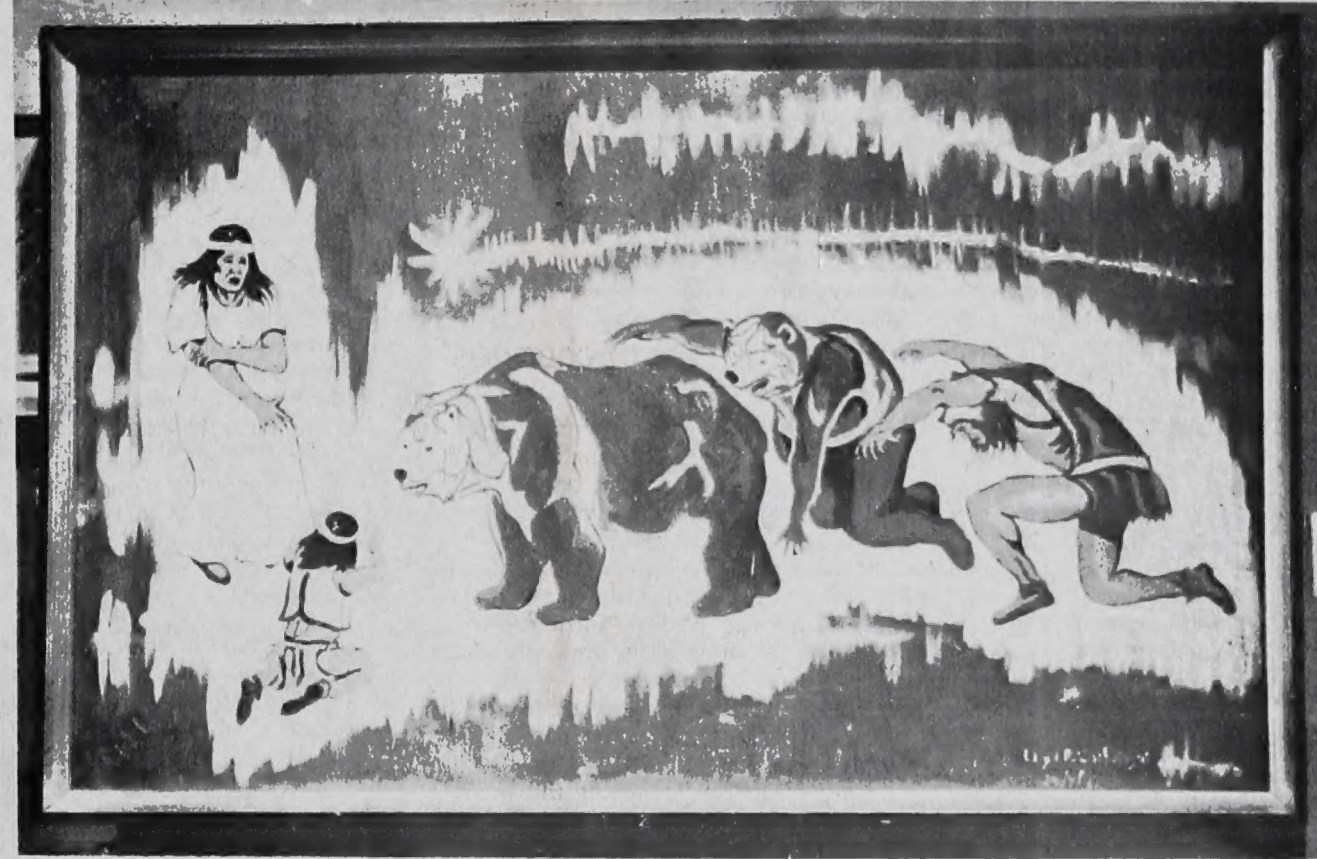

"Rug Hookers"
The first meeting will be held September 22 at Barb Ellison's from 10 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. For further information call Peggy Barclay 754-2367 or Barb at 457-1706.

"Quilters"
They are going to make another quilt! If you are interested in joining the group and helping in this project call Joan Pearson 286-1894. We as Guild members are very proud of this new group. The quilt they made last year netted $1500; $1000. of that they so generously donated to the Gallery with the remainder being used to further their education in the craft by having qualified teachers come to Haliburton for instruction and also to purchase materials and equipment. Well done quilters!

"Quilt Competition"
The Guild will be featuring a quilt competition and exhibition at the Ralls End Gallery from January 6 to 31, 1981. Categories: novice quilt, traditional design quilt, original design quilt and group quilt. Further information regarding the competition will be coming out in the next few weeks. Watch for it! Entry form and information will be made available at the Gallery.

If you are a new member and your particular craft is not listed amongst the now established groups, but you are interested in sharing your craft and knowledge with others, you can, on request ask to hold a

Dorset News

"He who conceals a useful truth is equally guilty with the propagator of an injurious falsehood."

On Saturday, October 11 the Pathfinders are holding a bake sale at Tingles Ladies shop across from Robinson's store. The sale will be from 11 until 2 or until everything is sold. What a nice easy way to acquire your goodies for Thanksgiving weekend.

Kind thoughts and best wishes for a speedy recovery to Rhoda Taylor who is a patient in Huntsville Hospital, having undergone surgery last week.

On October 22, Charles Khapp, an artisan who works on the production of stained glass, will be at the Dorset Senior Club to explain what is involved in the work, what implements are needed and how costly it is. This is in anticipation of having a class after the first of the year. The meeting will be at 8 p.m.

It's that time of year again and the Brownies, Guides, Pathfinders and Rangers held their registration on September 17. As usual there were little girls literally "coming out of the woodwork", and nine Brownies, five Guides, six Pathfinders and seven Rangers turned out to begin another guiding year in Dorset. After registration was completed, a rousing campfire complete with hot chocolate and cookies ended the evening. There are some new leaders this year who are very welcome and appreciated by those who have been with the movement for some years. Working with Mrs. Francine Moulard will be Kathy Lewis in the Brownies; Mrs. Pricilla Lewis is the new and enthusiastic Guide leader; Mrs. Marie Warkentin has taken over the Pathfinders and enthusiastic worker of long-standing, Mrs. Gloria Morris in with the Rangers. Some of these groups could use an extra mother as helper, so please, if anyone is interested in spending some time with these delightful little (and bigger) girls, please come out! Mrs. Joanne Buss is the new president of the L.A. of mothers (without which we could not possibly operate) and is hoping that all mothers will get behind these girls, through the L.A. and support them during the year. The financial assistance that the Dorset Lions club gives the groups, by providing the girls with a bus for their various trips, is greatly appreciated and they would like to express their thanks. The bus makes for comfortable and untroubled travel.

Our beautiful flock of tame mallards has been depleted by some avaricious and unkind person. The ducks were so tame and everyone around the lake was feeding them. They would practically eat out of your hand. There are only two older ones (there were three) and one lonely younger one out of 13 or 14. Talk about shooting fish in a barrel, same thing. We hope that whoever did this dastardly deed found them very tough eating and develop webbed toes and fingers. This may sound vengeful but we all mourn the loss of our little friends.

The Dorset Senior club held a potluck supper for their first October meeting. This was followed by a brief business meeting and then a very interesting film was shown, depicting the Flora and Fauna of some of our western provinces. The colors were beautiful and the photography exquisite.

Members and their wives from the Rotary Club of Haliburton are shown enjoying themselves at the District 701 Fall Conference held at North Bay recently. Rotary President Art Dawson had the privilege of accepting the attendance trophy which the Haliburton club has won nine times out of the last 10 years. This award goes to the club with the highest average attendance in District 701 over a 52-week period. From the left, Chester Schwandt, Kay Schwandt, Rick Elstone, Bea Herlihey, Rhonda Elstone, Art Dawson, June Devolin, John Beachli, Linda Beachli, Ellenor Bag, Doug Devolin, Allan Bagg, Marion Langdon, Ken Langdon.

Hi! Well, first of all, you are all invited to a Cameo tube painting party to be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, October 23. Your hostess will be Mrs. Violet Cook and it will be held at the home of Mrs. Violet Denelko on Highway 503 at Furnace Falls. Everyone is welcome and it might be fun.

A crusade for the whole family, featuring the Musical Story Man, Dr. Frank R. Wellington, L. Th.D.D., called the Edgar Bergen of the religious world, will be held at the Pioneer Baptist Church in the new education wing in Norland. It starts Sunday, October 5 at 7:30 p.m. and then on October 6, 7, 8 and 9 at 7 p.m. There will be entertainment with novelty musical instruments, ventriloquist and dolls, movies in panavision on the world's largest flannelgraph, gospel messages for the young and adults alike and all are welcome at no cost from grade one and up. Come out and enjoy the evening. Guests at the home of Mr.

and Mrs. Grattan Woodcock, in Kinmount, over the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. John Pasquino of Peterborough and Betty and Monica Vanlier of Lindsay. Lorrie Moss is now home from hospital and it is hoped she'll be feeling much better soon.

Phyllis LeCraw is still a patient at Ross Memorial as are a number of our local folk. Why not give them a call? It would cheer them up I'm sure!

Happy birthday to all you Libra babies of which I am one.

To Bill and Lorrie Moss - happy anniversary on October 18.

Our guests May and Bill

Campbell of Miami, Florida are still enjoying our beautiful country and we took them for a drive up north of Haliburton last Monday but at that time the colors weren't yet at their best. They'll be heading for Toronto soon so we're hoping they'll still have time to see our autumn us and the bears he captured in his camera. Films of the wild are always a treat to us and also a mystery how Dan calms these critters to pose for him. The deer is a superbly nimble creature that is beauty. 2. Round Robin, a timely salute to our most familiar, yet wary song bird the robin. The film was made in Britain where the robin is the national song bird. 3. Cape Breton Island, a tourist paradise of great beauty that gives itself very much to 'The Cabot Trail', that winds about lovely flat meadows and mountain crags, a magnificent contrast. The whole of Canada is lovely.

One seemingly obscure facet of this constitutional debate besides Hibernia is the Great Churchill Hydro Power Developments, upper and lower projects of Newfoundland-Labrador, promoted by Joey Smallwood. Levesque can and is holding Peckford for ransom of great price to provide a corridor for that power to get to market. Another question may interest all. Is it not legal for any province to repudiate any investment any person outside that province makes. That word 'investment' was an exception to the proviso for inter-provincial trade. We do not have those answers, but we should.

Saturday night we enjoyed 'Anthology' the C.B.C. literary program of prose and poetry. It was in excellent form.

Tom and Donna Barbour have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Fletcher at Manacki in Northern Ontario.

Twenty lashes with a wet noodle is due me - to quote Ann Landers. I did not mention "Mary Lou Richardson's new title of "Mrs." though I had mentioned it earlier when I mentioned a bridal shower for her. In any case, Mary Lou married Craig Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Horton who have a cottage at Norland. The happy couple were wed in Christ Church Anglican on September 20. I did not get to see the wedding since I was busy helping with the 50th anniversary for Mr. and Mrs.

Ross Faulkner, since a hot meal was prepared for their family and I had the honour of roasting one of the turkeys, helping serve, do dishes, etc. Congratulations Mary Lou and Craig! May you be happy and enjoy your home at Whitby!

Last week I mentioned Kay Carr being ill in hospital. Sadly, Kay passed away Saturday afternoon, September 27 after a long battle with cancer. Kay was active up until her last few days in hospital. She never complained though she suffered a long time. Some people complain of a tummy ache, a headache and runny nose or a into her bush in the search. The group were led by Mr. Mike Collins who is an expert in this field. Many different species were collected and on return were identified by the leader who showed the differences between the edible ones and the poisonous varieties. The trees were clothed in all their autumn glory making a picturesque setting for the trip. Two flocks of geese flew overhead on their southward migration. Fay graciously served lunch. The trip was both enjoyable and educational. This is becoming an annual expedition and all look forward to next year when additional information can be acquired.

Haliburton County Home Support Services has received favourable publicity in the press and on T.V. Mrs. Doris McCann is the efficient president of this body, giving unselfishly of her talents. On October 20 an interview has been arranged with this lady and Bruce Anderson which will be broadcast on the "Afternoon Show" at 12:30 over CHEX, Peterborough Channel 12. Watch Doris at this time and learn just what the Haliburton County Home Support Services have done and what their future plans are. Hopefully, Glamorgan will benefit in the near future.

Upon returning from work at Bark Lake Camp, Mrs. Eileen Riel had the misfortune to have a front tire blow, causing her to lose control and crash her car. Although the car received considerable damage, Eileen was very fortunate in that she was unhurt.

All her many friends are glad to know that Mrs. Pearl Carey is home from hospital this week. Although she may have to return, we hope her stay may be of short duration and that she will soon be home to stay and well again.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hadley of Barrie, visited Bob's mother, Mrs. Mary Hadley, on the weekend.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q: I'VE DONE EVERYTHING I CAN TO INSULATE MY HOME, CAN I LOOK FORWARD TO LOWER FUEL BILLS?

A: Probably, but you can also look forward to fewer but stronger drafts around doors, windows and vents, problems with excess humidity, stale musty odours AND quite possibly, an overworked furnace.

Q: BUT WHY?

A: Because you now have a lack of the fresh air in your home that is essential for healthy living for you, your family, pets and plants and even your furnace.

Q: SHOULD I BE WORRIED?

A: The Federal Dept. of Health & Welfare and the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario are. All of them, as well as some manufacturers of forced air furnaces, agree that to provide a controlled fresh air intake to the furnace can significantly reduce or eliminate these problems. So much so that it is now either mandatory or at least strongly recommended that such fresh air intakes be installed in new homes and those older homes that have recently been re-insulated.

Q: WOULDN'T THAT BE EXPENSIVE?

A: Not really! There is now available, a CANADIAN product called the "FURN-A-JET" system that does all these things and more. It has a special damper (PATENT PENDING) that automatically shuts off when your furnace does, to stop heat from getting out. It is fully adjustable, never needs maintenance and can be installed by any competent do-it-yourselfer or you can have it installed by a qualified "FURN-A-JET" installation person.

Q: O.K. HOW MUCH?

A: The "FURN-A-JET" system itself costs $29.95 plus, of course Prov. sales tax. Installation is $50.00 (average) BUT, if you order one between now and November 1, 1980, the entire system and installation is only $57.95 plus tax. YOU CAN SAVE $22.00 and supply your home with the fresh air it needs.

Q: WHERE DO I GET A "FURN-A-JET"?

A: Just phone 457-1645 or write:

John Stainton & Assoc.
P.O. Box 311, Haliburton.

BUT, HURRY! YOU MUST ORDER BEFORE NOV. 1st TO SAVE THAT $22.00.

This youngster was enjoying the country and western sounds at the Stanhope Airport triple-decker colour show on Sunday. Visitors had the chance to partake in Skyrides to enjoy the coloured scenery and also a flea market organized in the hangars.

This is a wee bit premature but why not give these a try for all those little characters who will be knocking on your door at the end of this month? They're called: Pumpkin

Face Cookies: With Raisin Filling - 3 1/2 cups all purpose flour, 3 tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1 1/2 cups shortening, 2 eggs, 3 tbs. milk, 1 tsp. vanilla, orange food coloring if desired. Measure the flour (without sifting) onto square of waxed paper. Add baking powder and salt and stir well to blend. Cream sugar, shortening, eggs, milk and vanilla thoroughly. Add blended dry ingredients and mix well. Color dough with a few drops of the orange coloring if desired. Divide dough in half and chill at least 2 hours. Roll out half the dough on lightly floured surface to 1/8" thickness. Cut with 2 3/4" round cookie cutter. Place half the circles on ungreased cookie sheets. Place 2 tsp. Raisin Filling (below) on each. Cut remaining circles to resemble pumpkin faces and place on top of filling. Seal edges with tines of fork. Repeat with remaining dough. Bake at 375 degrees F. for about 12 minutes. Yield about 2 1/2 - 3 doz. cookies. The Raisin Filling: 2 cups chopped raisins, 2/3 cup of sugar, 2/3 cup of oil water, 1 tbs. butter, 1 tbs. lemon juice, 1/2 tsp. grated rind of lemon, 1/8 tsp. salt. Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until thick, about 5 minutes. Cool. The kids will love them.

Sincere sympathy is extended to family and friends of Mr. Oscar John Kennette who passed away suddenly at Peterborough Civic Hospital on Saturday, September 27, 1980.

Lori Ann Spencer will be home soon, after a brief stay in hospital at Lindsay. Welcome home!

Mame and Bill Campbell, our guests for the past couple of weeks, Bill and I, spent a few hours in Lindsay on Wednesday and Mame says she'd like to live there so they are very impressed with our little piece of the world.

By the time this is in print our acting post mistress, Germaine Brooke will be finished her term and post mistress Jane Rolfe will be back on the job after a very busy summer in which she added her new daughter to their family. Welcome back Jane and the best of luck go with you Germaine.

Would the person or persons who collected over 200,000 in Dominion Store cash register tapes for a wheelchair please get in touch with Marg Michel at 454-8136 or Nancy Mathieson at 454-3577. The chair had been delivered to Fenelon Falls but as no name was registered the chair had to be returned to Toronto and is now sitting as a credit at the Toronto plant. It would be nice to see the chair sent to the person who it was meant for but at the moment nothing can be done so if you know anything of this please refer to one of the above named ladies.

A big thank you to mom for the lovely turkey dinner and gifts and thanks too, to Mame and Bill Campbell, John Pyke, Bill, Lorrie and Jason Moss, Amy and Larry Coker, Ida and Clyde Pardy, Helen and Alex Graham, Bonnie and Jim Walker and also to my good husband for the very nice day they provided for me on October 2. I think I could learn to like birthdays.

Speaking of birthdays, a very happy one is wished for Bill Scott on Monday, October 6. He'll probably be spending his day in our capital.

I enjoyed our phone chat Irene McElwain.

A pot luck lunch brought to a close the seventh year of activities for the Kinmount Senior Citizens Club 714. The weekly social meetings, the bus trips, Christmas party, bazaars and not only interest but pride in the craft works all add up to a very pleasant year of good fellowship and fun.

Election of officers for 1980-81 took place and officials for the year are: President - Clara Watson; 1st Vice President - Marguerite Scarlett; 2nd Vice President - Dick Holbrook; Recording Secretary - Irene McElwain; Corresponding Secretary - Flossie Sherman; Treasurer - Flo Schlosser; Membership Secretary - Percy Sherman; Trustees - Gordon, Kellett, Jim Simpson, Charlie Molyneux; Craft Convenor - Ruth Kellett; Social Convenors - Executive as a whole Committee.

Points of interest were Rails' End Gallery, Haliburton, where the works of the Ojibee Cultural Foundation were featured; to Harburn and Eagle Lake to West Guilford and hence to the Fireside Restaurant, Minden, for dinner and the evening's entertainment of euche.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Penrice of Guelph, visited with the Les Swanton's, Charlie Molyneux and Irene McElwain on Thursday.

Our guests and we visited with Helen and Alex Graham and their guests, Elizabeth and Andy Graham in Norland and Ida and Clyde Pardy in Coboconk on Friday evening. Take care of yourselves and may the wind be always at your back. Have a nice day. 488-2399.

In the absence of the treasurer the report was read by Comrade Don Johnston. The minutes of the last general meeting and executive meeting were read and adopted. The report on the Dominion Convention was read by the secretary. The reports of the standing committees were presented next. The posters re the literary contest has been delivered to the schools in the area and these have to be submitted to the zone officer by December 15. The public speaking contest will commence early in the new year.

Comrade Ed Fajar reports that the Poppy Campaign will be underway later this month. He is in need of canvassers and people to sell poppies on Poppy Day. Please come forward comrades and give a few hours of your time to this worthwhile cause.

Sports begin on Monday, October 13 with cribbage Tuesday night is euchre, Wednesday, darts, Thursday ladies shuffleboard and Friday mixed shuffleboard. Plan to participate in at least one of these activities during the winter months. Comrade Joan Irish is our new entertainment chairman and she is lining up some great entertainment for the branch. On October 3 a Colourful Dance was held and despite the inclement weather a good crowd was on hand and we are predicting bigger and better things for the future. On Saturday, October 11 some new and exciting entertainment is coming to the Legion. This is new to the Haliburton area and is billed as the first mini-Octoberfest. It will be held in the club room and all members and guests are urged to come out and enjoy something new and exciting. See the advertisement elsewhere in this paper.

Joan has some great ideas for future dances so keep watching for further news from this department.

The Zone F4 fall convention will be held on Sunday, November 16 in Bobcaygeon and the president would like to see a good turnout from this branch. Plans are also underway for Remembrance Day, Tuesday, November 11 and all comrades are urged to be in attendance on that day.

The true "bricks" are those who truly suffer a great lot - and have every right to feel self pity but never complain of being ill. Their concern is for someone else though they themselves need the sympathy and encouragement to go on. Kay leaves her husband, Gordon and five children, the youngest just over four years of age. Our sympathy to the family and we will have many fond memories of a girl who was stalwart to the very end.

After much frustration, pleading with our township clerk, the hydro office in Fenelon Falls, etc. by many of us Somerville Township residents, we finally have street lights, after over two weeks of total night-time darkness on our streets. I personally phoned Mr. Sainsbury at Hydro and he assured me, on Thursday, September 25 that the men were working on our lights. However, it wasn't until September 29 that we finally had lights. Thanks to whoever found the problem and we are keeping our fingers crossed hoping we have no more problems.

October 5 to 11 is "Lungs For Life" week. You no doubt are familiar with Christmas Seals that are mailed out to each household every fall. The monies raised are for research for lung problems and we all know healthy are important to each of us. Now, how about tossing out those cigarettes and have healthy lungs?

Mrs. Rae Brock leaves

Tuesday the 7th for a visit with her sister, Ann Lauder in Claymont, Delaware and will attend the wedding of her nephew, Dr. David Lauder in Louiston, Maine on the 11th. On the 25th she will attend another nephews wedding, her nephew Richard Rothwell at Jasper near Smith Falls. Needless to say, Rae has been busy shopping for wedding gifts!

Theodore Cragg had surgery in Ross Memorial Hospital last week. Get well soon, Theodore!

Jim and Betty Harris and family of Bealey, Mrs. Myrtle Faulkner and Mrs. Annie Marles spent last Sunday at Belleville with Lloyd Falkner and Lawrence Davis.

Pat and Marvin Watson motored to Cobourg Friday night, then went by bus with friends to Montreal early Saturday, October 4 to watch, live, the Expos play ball at Montreal.

So Barb, you are retiring from your writing career! We all know it is sometimes hard to dig up news. If you miss something you are sure told about it. If the spelling or date is wrong, we hear about that too. The people who write out or phone you with information are the ones we really appreciate. It makes writing much easier and how can we tell it if we don't know, or we hear about an event second hand? I'm sure each of the correspondents send the Echo the news item if they know about it. I try to keep my news "Coboconk" only and leave it to other correspondents to report what is happening in their clubs, their halls, their residents' visitations, etc.

I enjoy each writer's column and I for one will miss Barb's latest "Norland newsflash". With her experience maybe Barb will go on to bigger and better reporting jobs! Seriously, we'll all miss your column Barb. I know you are busy in several clubs, etc. and one person can only do so much!

John Bryants' parents escaped with injuries, when their plane crashed at Lindsay airport, Thursday morning. Theodore and Isobel Bryant live in Truro, N.S. but have a couple of homes here and fly up often.

Harry Langdon keeps home fires burning

The art of fixing old cookstoves seems to have died with the influx of air tights

by Sue Cooper

It seems that Harry Langdon is the type of person who is always fixing something. So, it was fitting that on the first day of his retirement, last Wednesday, he was sitting in front of a sewing machine in his basement making seat covers for an old truck he is restoring.

Langdon, a cheery 71 year-old who says no one would recognize him without his straw hat on his head or a cigarette in his hand, came to Haliburton Village 16 years ago to purchase Black's Hardware, on the corner of Highland and Maple Streets.

In the years since he moved to the village, Langdon has built a workshop beneath his backyard (since no additional buildings are allowed on the lot) and has sold his business to his son Ken.

Now that his retirement is official, Langdon will be able to spend all the time he wants tinkering in his workshop. His present project, rebuilding the old truck, has taken precedence over his long-standing hobby of rebuilding old wood cookstoves.

"I'm kind of getting away from it," Langdon said at his home on Harmony Road in Haliburton Village, on Thursday.

But he has rebuilt and restored a number of cookstoves in the five years he has been involved with the hobby. In one year alone, he rebuilt and sold 52 cookstoves.

Langdon says the demand for the rebuilt stoves has started to die off and it is getting harder to pick up the stoves for a reasonable price.

"I think it's one of two things doing it, either everybody's got one who wants one or they're going to the airtights," Langdon said.

When he first started out repairing and selling the stoves, he would put an advertisement in the newspaper and might get 30 or 40 calls but now he has to advertise three or four times to get just a few calls.

Langdon said there are a few rare stoves that are in demand if they can be found.

One of the all-time favourites is the Findlay Oval cookstove which Langdon refers to as the "granddaddy of them all". Langdon said the Findlay Oval is not that much different than other stoves, except that it has a very deep firebox which is a luxury since most cookstoves require almost constant feeding.

In the time he was actively looking for stoves, Langdon said he was only fortunate enough to pick up three of the sought-after Findlays.

But recently, because of the demand for woodstoves, a company in Elmira, Ontario, was able to obtain the old patterns for the Findlays and is now producing and selling them successfully.

Harry Langdon fixes part of an old wood cookstove

Finding a cast iron stove is a dream
come true

Another of the woodstove buyer's dreams would be to find one of the extremely old, totally cast iron stoves. Langdon said these stoves were being produced around the turn of the century and are very rare now. However, along with being tough to obtain they are also tough to fix since cast iron is hard to work with.

Usually cracks will be found in the cast iron after years of use. Langdon said machine shops can weld cast iron today, but they can't weld the grates.

"After years of burning fires in the stove, the grates have lost all the life of the metal and it is almost impossible to weld them," Langdon said.

When buying a used stove, Langdon said it is very important to make sure the firebox grates and the fire brick is in good shape since it is very unlikely they can be replaced.

On the other hand, Langdon said any holes or burnt-out sections can usually be repaired.

"I've bought stoves where the whole oven was burnt out," Langdon said. He explained that tin sheets can be formed into the proper square sizes and just slid into the oven compartment to repair the stove.

Although Langdon has rebuilt many stoves and then resold them, he said he would never rebuild a stove for anyone.

"It's strictly for a hobby. I don't want somebody hounding me about when their stove is going to be done," Langdon said.

Also, he said it would be very expensive to rebuild stoves for individuals since he would have to charge about $10 an hour for his labour while he now charges about two or three dollars an hour when he is working for himself.

Once, Langdon said he rebuilt a stove for someone, but only because it was a very close friend.

When rebuilding stoves for resale, Langdon said care has to be taken to make sure the stoves are in good working order.

"I won't sell it unless I'm sure it wouldn't catch on fire and burn a house down," Langdon said.

Working on the stoves is a filthy job, Langdon said. He said he has been covered in soot a lot of times and claims it's worse than grease; it just won't come off.

It is also heavy work having to carry the stove from one house to another and Langdon said he has

Working on stoves is a filthy job to get men to help him with the lifting. But once a stove is rebuilt, Langdon sales policy is: buy it where it is, as it is.

When Langdon was going full force on stove rebuilding, he used to take the stoves as trade-ins at the hardware store or just pick them up at the owner's home.

Once he recalls going to pick up a stove and the owners still had a fire burning in it, so the stoves were not always in extremely rough shape when he obtained them.

Now that the demand seems to have died off a little, Langdon only has two stoves in his basement. One of the stoves which still needs work has been sold to a son in Newmarket while the other one doesn't seem to be too popular since it is white porcelain.

Langdon said he has been around a workshop ever since he was young because his father always had a workshop. And in the depression years when Harry Langdon was laid off from the furniture manufacturing companies in Stratford, Ontario, his workshop produced the family's livelihood.

In his retirement years, Harry Langdon will probably never find himself sitting around with nothing to do. As he moves on from repairing wood stoves to rebuilding his old truck he will no doubt pick up more items that need to be fixed. And that, it seems, will suit him just fine.

Wood heat is alternative to rising oil costs

Wood stoves provide greater radiant heat than forced air system

An introduction

As a result of the energy shortage, many people are turning to wood burning stoves, furnaces and fireplaces as supplementary sources of heat. Unfortunately, very few people know how to select, install, operate and maintain solid fuel heating equipment. Yet, safety and satisfaction depends on knowing all of those things, and safety is of the utmost importance. The needless loss of lives and property resulting from the misuse of such equipment bears grim witness to that fact.

Since the fuel crisis includes a shortage of fuel oil and kerosene, both figuring heavily as sources of heat for dwellings, many people are turning to wood burning stoves, furnaces and fireplaces as supplementary sources of heat. Unfortunately, very few people know how to select, install, operate and maintain solid fuel heating equipment. Yet, safety and satisfaction depends on knowing all of those things, and safety is of the utmost importance. The needless loss of lives and property resulting from the misuse of such equipment bears grim witness to that fact.

Wood burning stoves are radiant heaters. Radiant heat usually provides greater comfort than other types of heat, such as heat from forced air systems. Radiant heat is the type of heat produced by an electric heater and by the sun. A person may feel comfortable in an area heated to a relatively low temperature by radiant heat if the heated area is protected from drafts. However, an oxygen consuming fire must be provided with a continuous supply of fresh air, which means that ventilation is essential, not only for proper combustion, but also for the safety of the occupants. Normal air leakage in a dwelling is usually sufficient but may not be in a well-insulated house unless a window is left cracked open. Exhaust fan should be used judiciously, since a fan that is on could pull products of combustion from a fireplace into the living area. Stoves are sometimes over-fired; the stoves and their chimney connectors and chimney flues may become red hot. Over-firing, coupled with inadequate clearances and lack of constant attention, have resulted in many fires that would not have otherwise occurred.

Examine used wood stove before using

If the fireplace has been previously used, it and its chimney should be inspected before being reactivated to see that the chimney is clean; that the damper is in working order (if there is a damper - some chimneys have been built without a damper); that the chimney, fireplace, and hearth are in good repair (there may be loose mortar, etc.); and that no alteration to the structure has been made in the immediate vicinity of the fireplace, such as partition changes, the addition of cabinets or bookcases, and similar alterations that will affect heat transfer from the fireplace to combustible materials. The fireplace must have a tight fitting screen to prevent sparks and hot coals from popping out.

A used stove should be checked for cracks or other defects that may require repairs with stove cement, as well as for more obvious defects, such as faulty legs, hinges, draft louvers, etc. If there are severe cracks, they should be welded by an expert; or preferably, a stove in better repair should be sought. If the stove is for use with coal, it must have grates in good repair.

A new stove should be made of sturdy, suitable materials, such as local cast iron or suitable steel and preferably purchased from a reliable dealer that has stove experts on his staff.

Seal ashes in metal container for safety

Ashes should be placed in a metal container with a tight fitting lid. The closed container of ashes should be placed on a noncombustible floor or on the ground, well away from all combustible materials, pending final disposal. If the ashes are disposed of by burial in soil or otherwise locally dispersed, they should be retained in the closed container until all cinders have thoroughly cooled.

Combustion is complex reaction

Combustion is commonly used household solid fuels is a complex chemical reaction between the fuel and oxygen. This results in heat and other products of combustion. Therefore, to assure satisfactory combustion and safe operation, several conditions must be met:

(1) A continuous supply of fresh air must be provided to supply oxygen for combustion and for the occupants of the room or area.

(2) A proper amount of fuel must be provided in the combustion chamber - not enough to cause overheating of the stove and connector, but a sufficient amount to avoid a cool flue liner that would result in condensation of the distillates and accumulations of creosote residues and poor draft.

(3) The fuel must be burned properly to avoid wasted fuel and toxic products of combustion, such as carbon monoxide.

(4) All unwanted products of combustion must be removed. The gaseous products must be continuously removed while the stove is in operation, and the solid products (ashes) must be disposed of in a safe manner.

When wood is burned slowly, it produces acetic and pyroigneous acids, which combine with expelled moisture to form creosote. The creosote vapors condense in the relatively cool chimney flue of a slow-burning fire. As a result, creosote residue accumulates on the flue lining and seeps into any mortar joints that are not tight and into any other exposed cracks. When ignited this creosote makes an extremely hot fire.

It is far better, of course, to prevent accumulations of creosote by maintaining a briskly burning fire with dry, well-seasoned wood in a stove or fireplace served by a properly designed chimney flue. If creosote does accumulate, however, it should be scraped off with a metal blade, such as a garden hoe with the blade goose neck straightened out so that the blade is in the same plane with the hoe handle. Creosote is difficult to remove, so care must be taken to prevent damage to the mortar.

Install a manual damper instead of automatic draft

An automatic draft regulator actuated by a thermostat, to control the rate of combustion, may be installed for a solid fuel stove if installed in accordance with instructions provided by the manufacturer of the regulator or stove. An alternative is installing a manually operated damper as an integral part of one section of the chimney connector. (The damper is installed in a connector system - one length of stove pipe - usually by the installer). The damper section may be vertical or horizontal and is usually installed near the stove for convenience in operation.

Make sure old chimney provides draft for stove

Where an existing chimney is used, it must be large enough to provide a draft adequate for exhausting the gaseous products of combustion. The cross-sectional area of the chimney flue should be at least 25 percent greater than that of the chimney connector (stove pipe).

A stove-chimney connector is not permitted to be connected to a chimney flue for a fireplace unless the fireplace opening is sealed or unless the flue is permanently sealed between the fireplace and the stove connector entrance to the flue. Yet, a chimney must be used to vent a coal or wood burning stove, for a vent other than a chimney flue is not permitted to be used for a solid-fuel stove. However, the chimney is not required to be of masonry construction; it may be a factory-built chimney or a metal smoke stack.

Factory-made chimneys tested for efficiency

A factory-built chimney may be used for a wood burning stove or for a fireplace where the fireplace is designed for use with the chimney. Such metal chimneys (stacks) are tested and listed by nationally recognized testing laboratories. They are efficient and easy to install. Soot and creosote build-ups are minimized because of rapid warming of the inner walls of this type chimney. This results in increased safety. Hence, if there is no existing chimney that can be readily used, a factory-built chimney offers a practical solution.

A factory-built chimney can also be used in a home where an existing chimney is below standard, is deteriorated, or serves a fireplace that the occupant prefers not to seal off.

Connect stoves at different level on chimney

If two or more stoves, such as a room heater and a cook stove, are connected to the same chimney flue, despite the recommendations against doing so, the connectors must enter the chimney at different elevations. A common flue must, of course, be of sufficient size to provide an adequate draft for all stoves connected to it. The availability of good factory-built chimneys, however, should obviate the need for multiple connections to a common chimney flue.

Check flue before starting stove

Each year before a stove or fireplace is put into service, the chimney flue should be thoroughly cleaned of soot and other residues. Then the flue should be inspected for any needed repairs and for any accumulations of creosote. However, if during the operation of a stove or fireplace some creosote accumulates in the flue and starts to burn, the fire department should be called immediately. Then while waiting for the arrival of fire fighters, block off all combustion air, the fire can usually be controlled and possibly extinguished by dumping a large quantity of coarse salt on the fire in the fireplace or in the fire chamber of a stove. In the case of a

Wood heat can be economical

The economics of wood as a source of home heat can be surprising. If you are lucky enough to have access to free wood, as many people in the Haliburton area do, then wood is unquestionably the cheapest form of heating there is, even if you count the labour to cut, gather, split and pile it. It may still be substantially more economical ical to heat with wood than with other forms of energy even if you have to buy it in ready to burn form, however.

Good wood makes good heat

All wood is not alike, here's some basic differences:

You've got your stove installed and ready to go. All you need is the wood to fuel it. But which wood is best? There is no definite answer, although experience may give rise to individual preferences. Some woods are easier to light, some, give off pleasant odours when they burn, others produce a good bed of coals, others have a tendency to spark and sputter. The type of wood you burn in your wood stove or furnace will depend primarily on its availability and its cost. But you need not turn down softwood just because it burns more quickly than hardwood, especially if you will be around to tend the fire on a regular basis. With a mixture of wood, it is possible to burn softwoods in the daytime, when the fire can be stoked every three or four hours, and hardwood at night, when a long, slow burn is desirable.

Remember, because all wood has the same basic chemical composition, all wood contains just about the same amount of energy per air dried pound. Hardwoods, being more dense, burn slower and give off more heat for a given volume, but not for a given weight.

The following table provides a basis for comparison of several species of wood:

The heating capacity of wood stoves, and the energy content of wood itself, is commonly measured in something called British Thermal Units, or Btu's. A very small unit of measure, a Btu is defined as the amount of energy required to raise the temperature of one pound of water (one pint) by one degree Fahrenheit. Heating a pint of water from 60 F. to the boiling point thus requires 152 Btu's.

The 3000 calories of food energy the average adult consumes in a day represents about 1200 Btu's of energy.

How much of the energy contained in a given weight of wood will be released into a house by a wood stove depends on a number of factors, including the density of the material out of which the stove is made, the ability of the air to circulate around the stove, the type and dimensions of the chimney, and the moisture content of the wood.

Generally speaking, a modern, well designed wood stove has an efficiency rating anywhere from 60 to 70 percent. Thus some 60 to 70 percent of the 5800 Btu's in an air dried pound of wood (with a moisture content of about 20 percent) can be expected to be released as useable heat when burned in a well designed and properly installed wood stove.

Keep inflammable materials away from wood stove

Materials that are more easily ignitable than wood because of their form and shape - such as loose paper, cardboard, most fabrics, and most fiberboard materials, etc., - must have greater clearances from a source of heat than the minimum clearances required for solid wood. Sources of heat included hot ashes, flying embers, sparks, flames, hot coals, hot surfaces of stoves, chimney connectors, hot escaping gases from cracks in connectors, flues, etc., and similar hot objects. Combustible materials stored too close to a heat source are just as vulnerable as combustible materials subjected to a heat source that is installed too close to the material.

It is important, therefore, that stoves, connectors, chimneys, and similar equipment be installed only where adequate clearances can be maintained from all combustible materials. It is equally important, however, that combustible materials be stored well away from all sources of heat. And it is essential that all heating equipment be operated and maintained as intended by the manufacturer of the equipment. Overfiring means overheating. Smoldering fuel means accumulations of volatile residues. The use of flammable liquids for starting or rekindling a fire means flashovers. Deteriorated equipment means escaping hot gases. All of these conditions have resulted in fires, loss of lives, and injuries.

Be sure: Check wood measurement

As the price of heating fuels increases, firewood is becoming a popular alternative for heating the home. However, a great deal of confusion exists over the measurement of firewood for sale.

Under the Weights and Measures Act, which is administered by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada, a full cord of firewood should have a volume of 128 cubic feet (8 X 4 X 4 feet) or 3625 cubic decimetres (2.4 X 1.2 X 1.2 metres). This usually happens when the firewood is cut shorter than the standard four-foot lengths, to suit modern fireplaces.

Although it is legal to sell firewood in fractions of a cord - 1/4, 1/2, 1/3 etc., these amounts should not be represented as a cord. Any

Weights and Measures Act. To ensure that they get what they pay for, consumers should request a written invoice which states the quantity of wood received in cords, cubic feet or cubic decimetres. Remember that there is no legal definition for a "face cord", so the accurate volume should be included. Unless you know the exact quantity of firewood you will receive for the price, it is impossible to shop around for the best value.

Split wood a year before using

Since the moisture must be evaporated and expelled before the wood will burn, the wood should be cut and stored in a dry place several months, preferably a year before it is used. The moisture content of some trees may be 100 percent, i.e., the moisture may be equal in quantity to the wood content of the tree. After wood has been stored from six to ten months, its moisture content will usually range from 15 to 25 percent. Splitting of the wood before it is stored reduces its drying time, results in more even burning, and minimized the condensation of water vapor and volatile distillates that form creosote deposits in chimney flues. Hence, it is more efficient and safer to burn moderate amounts of dry wood in a hot fire than to use green or wet wood that smolders.

Because of its high percentage of volatile matter, wood burns with a long flame (longer than coal flames). The combustion space above wood fuel must, therefore, be greater than is needed for coal. And (unlike coal where most of the air mix must be introduced beneath the fuel) about 80 percent of the air must be supplied over and around the upper portion of a wood fire to assure complete combustion and to prevent unburned gases and distillates from entering the chimney flue.

If a moderate-sized hot fire is maintained, any creosote or volatile gases that do enter a flue as a result of incomplete combustion are likely to be exhausted out of the hot chimney flue in the form of vapors. But with a cooler smoldering fire, these volatile substances are likely to condense in the relatively cool flue and accumulate on the flue walls, creating a fire hazard. When such residues are ignited, the result is an extremely hot fire that may damage mortar joints and sometimes ignite nearby combustible structural parts of the building.

A shallow bed of ashes should be left in a stove or fireplace to provide a heat reflecting surface. To build a

Air is needed to ensure total combustion in stove

Complete combustion occurs when all of the fuel is oxidized by the air. Perfect combustion occurs where there is no excess air in the combustion chamber after complete oxidation has occurred. Except under controlled laboratory conditions, however, a continuous perfect combustion process is unattainable with solid fuels. Therefore, some excess air is necessary to assure complete combustion. For that reason, stoves and fireplaces are designed to operate with a considerable amount of excess air to prevent intermittent periods of incomplete combustion.

Air is usually supplied to two areas: at the bottom of the fuel and at the flame area.

That supplied at the lower area is called "primary" air; that supplied at the upper area is called "secondary" air. Where incomplete combustion occurs, carbon monoxide is produced; and fuel is incompletely burned and therefore, partially wasted. Incomplete combustion can result from an insufficient supply of air, misapplied air, or insufficient heat.

Maintenance is important for efficient use of stove

In order for a solid-fuel heating system to operate efficiently and safely, whether the heating source is a stove or a fireplace, the entire system must be properly

Wood Combustion
Wood combustion occurs in three basic stages: First, the moisture in the wood is evaporated (converted to steam) and expelled; second, the volatile liquids are distilled and burned; and finally, the fixed carbon (charcoal) is burned. All three stages of combustion may occur at the same time, such as when new fuel is added to glowing coals.

Maintained. This means that the stove or fireplace, chimney connectors and joints, and the chimney flue must be in proper working order and clean.

Starting fires is easy with a little paper and kindling

Once a draft has been created in the flue, larger pieces of wood can be added to the fire. If smoke puffs out into the room, the bottom draft intake louver should be closed or partially closed until the smoke clears and the chimney vents properly. If the fire is burning too slowly, the draft louvers should be opened fully or more fully, and the damper should be opened wider or all the way. The draft should be kept adjusted for efficient operation. Frequent additions of a small amount of wood fuel will result in more even burning and the maintenance of a continuous hot fire.

Flammable liquids must never be used to start or to rekindle a solid-fuel fire!

Here is a message from Mrs. Sylvia Cameron: As many of you will know, the Christian Prayer Group of Wilberforce and the surrounding areas had applied to the government for a family of "Boat people". Somehow our application was lost along the way so we have been looking for a family of "Boat people" that we could assist. Information has come to us recently that two churches near Willowdale had sponsored the Omdaras family, from Laos, during the past year. This family consisting of the parents and five children are happily settled and are now self-supporting. Four of the family are working and three still at school. Mrs. Omdaras' brother with his wife and six children, the Keung family, have been in a Thailand refugee camp for a year. The Omdaras are very anxious to bring these relatives to Canada. Some financial assistance is necessary to help the Keung family get

Our weather certainly has been bleak for any bus trips to see the fall colours. Let us hope that the trees hold their colour over Thanksgiving and that the weekend will be nice for those who spend their holiday in our area. Have just checked the almanac and it says this weekend we'll have a few squalls then clearing and cold so be sure you have warm clothes on hand for it won't be summer or even Indian summer weather.

Ann McKay of Calgary has been visiting with the Allan Conebeares.

The jackpot went at bingo last Thursday night. Winner of $250 in 58 numbers was Mrs. Dan Gainforth of Haliburton. Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Coulter and Marg Miller spent a day last week with the Ab Uptons at Upterson. They had a lovely visit and certainly enjoyed Cora's lovely gravy.

The Thrift Shop will be open this Friday, October 10 from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at St.

Paul's Parish Hall.
Good humour is a tonic for mind and body. It is the best antidote for anxiety and depression. It is a business asset. It attracts and keeps friends. It lightens human burdens. It is the direct route to serenity and contentment.

Mr. and Mrs. Milt Sears visited the Glen Sears in Oshawa over the weekend.

There was a good attendance at the puppet show last Saturday morning but the children were disappointed that only one show was done, instead of the two they were expecting.

Mrs. Johann Beattie enjoyed having her sister Minnie Low of Toronto, also sister Jessie and brother-in-law Stuart of Scotland with her last week.

The first Minden Scout troop will hold their apple day this coming Friday night and all day Saturday.

I'm a baseball fan and last Friday and Saturday I sat through two of the most exciting ball games I have ever watched on T.V. Of course, I was rooting for the Expos and shared the disappointment along with all other Expo fans when they lost out but they sure put up a good battle and maybe next year they will make up for it; they say the third try is the charm, let us hope so.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Herlihey also Mr. and Mrs. Al Barron are home from their trip to Germany which they enjoyed very much.

Miss Laura Bird of Toronto spent several days with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bird.

Modesty is the triumph of mind over flatter.

Winners of the mini card party last Thursday were - cribbage, Cora Hewitt, Nettie Wilson; Euchre - lone hands, Della Griffin; Claire Brooks on a cut; Jeanne Sears.

If you have turkey left after Thanksgiving, try Turkey Tetrazzini - 5 cups cut-up turkey; 1/2 (16 oz.) pkg. thin spaghetti (cooked); 1 (8 oz.) can mushroom stems and pieces; 2 (10 1/2 oz.) cans condensed cream of celery soup; 1 1/2 oz. grated Parmesan cheese. Preheat oven to 350 degrees, combine all except cheese and pour mixture into 12" by 8" baking dish, sprinkle cheese over top. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Serves 8. If you wish to freeze some of above be sure your dish is freezer and oven proof. To serve frozen tetrazzini, pour milk over top and bake covered for 2 hours or until hot and bubbly, in 350 degree oven. (Do not bake what you are going to freeze.)

The library-culture centre group are holding a bake and white elephant sale at the old barber shop beside Hall Insurance office on Saturday, October 11 starting at 10 a.m. All donations from anyone of baking, etc. gratefully accepted.

I just listened to the news and not only are clerks out on strike but now a lot of Toronto librarians are on strike. Honestly, do they all realize what they will lose by these strikes. Isn't it better to accept what is offered and try again rather than lose your savings trying to keep food on the table?

The Minden bake shop has changed hands. It is now owned and run by Mrs. Lorna Hicks. Keith and Eva Prior say thanks to all their patrons and hope that all will continue to give Mrs. Hicks the support needed to keep the business operating.

None of us knows what is ahead. The important thing is to use today wisely and well, and face tomorrow eagerly and cheerfully and with certainty that we shall be equal to what it brings.

Minden figure skating club are holding their next registration on October 18 at municipal building.

The Women's Institute bus on October 1 was enjoyed by all who went. They left Minden at 8:30 a.m. and enjoyed the colour of the trees on the way to Cullen Gardens near Whitby. Here all enjoyed strolling along the paths between flower displays and the miniature village of homes, stores, church buildings even a mill with the wheel turning. These miniature buildings were exact in every detail even to street lights and traffic lights that work.

After everyone had enjoyed the tour and lunch they continued on to Oshawa Centre where congenial driver Jack Barley left those who wished to spend the rest of the time shopping before taking those who stayed on the bus to the Parkwood residence of Col. R.S. McLaughlin. After the tour of Parkwood the bus returned to the centre and after all had eaten, returned to Minden.

Have a lovely weekend. Adios and take care now.

Stanhope Notes

by Alex Stevenson

One of the election rumours which has been floating around Stanhope Township was effectively squelched by Minden Reeve Sinc Nesbitt by his announcement that he would seek re-election in Minden. Rumour had it that Stanhope's former reeve would seek election in Stanhope, but when we discussed the subject with Sinc recently he emphatically disposed of any such talk. In his characteristic way, Reeve Nesbitt left no doubt in our mind that the statement was just another invention without any foundation and that he had great respect for Stanhope's Reeve Jim Harrison and a warm feeling for Stanhope. He stated flatly that in his opinion "Jim Harrison has done an outstanding job and that Stanhope could be best served by keeping Harrison as reeve for another term." We feel that Nesbitt's friends in Minden will be pleased that he is still interested in serving their municipality.

A recently received letter from Dr. T. G. Brydges, Water Resources Branch of the Ministry of the Environment, provides the following information re Stanhope lakes and the acid rain threat: Maple and Beech Lakes have a satisfactory buffering capacity and are not considered sensitive. This is due to the geologic formations surrounding and underlying those lakes being such as to provide a satisfactory alkaline presence. Big Hawk Lake, Little Hawk Lake, Halls Lake, and Kushog Lake are low in alkalinity and are considered sensitive. This is due to the granite formations in which these lakes occur, such formations contributing very little alkalinity or buffering capacity to neutralize the acid fallout. These facts are not to be considered a reason for panic, but do indicate the need for alert attention to each of those lakes. Boshkung and Kabakwa (Peach) Lakes are said to be somewhere between the aforementioned lakes, having a reasonable buffering capacity. As we have said, it is not a panic situation but Stanhope may have to give some thought to future procedures to preserve the lakes. We have been asked about the effect of the unusual amount of rainfall this past summer and its effect on the precipitation of acid fallout. Dr. Brydges informs us that this situation has "supplied more acids from the atmosphere than usual. The acidic components of the precipitation may have lowered the Ph (increased the acidity) of most sensitive lakes and streams temporarily." We offer this information as such and remind our readers that the situation is not one for panic, but is one for reasoned study, and we think it is being handled that way.

We have recently seen a Chamber of Commerce questionnaire which is intended to be directed to the area municipal candidates for council or for the Board of Education. In our opinion this is rather a subjective type of document. Some of the questions defy an answer in that they imply action that is beyond the normal concerns of a political person or body, or should be until they are invited to intervene on a specific matter. Question 6 is typical in that it asks candidates what specific steps they would suggest to meet the legitimate concerns of those who would oppose economic development including manufacturing. How can anyone answer that question without knowing what the specific concern is and whether or not it is a legitimate concern? Candidates could not be blamed if they responded to such a question by asking that the problem be clarified before an answer is forthcoming. Some of the questions could be better answered by Chamber members since they deal with matters that can best be answered by the enterprisers themselves. Other questions would ask local politicians what the role of the Chamber should be in presenting viewpoints to various levels of government. Surely the individual members are more capable in this respect than individual candidates for township councils, are all it is their problems which are at issue.

Talking to Roads Overseer Marvin Brown re the township roads, he informed us that besides a ditching program and placing several road signs, the roads staff has completed two and a half miles of priming, plus one and a half miles of hard surfacing. Mr. Brown referred to the recently acquired steamer and also the patching machine, and pointed out that past problems with frozen culverts would be minimized by the use of the steamer.

settled in Canada. Our group would like to send the money that has been donated for a local family of boat people, to assist this Keung family. If anyone who has contributed money is not in favour of this plan, please contact Mrs. K. Cameron very soon. Also, if you can contribute financially during the coming year, please let Mrs. Cameron know so that we will know what assistance we will be able to promise for this family.

It was friendship night on Tuesday evening when the Senior Citizen Club members invited their friends to share an evening of fun and entertainment at the Memorial Centre. Highlight of the evening was the arrival of about twenty musicians from Bobcaygeon and area who came by chartered bus and who provided a variety of music that soon had everyone on their feet for square and round dancing. This men's group is made up of senior citizens who have been organized for eight years and who travel to many sections of the country with their fiddles and guitars bringing their delightful music to listeners. Pat Grant and her helpers delightful music to appreciative listeners. Pat Grant and her helpers served a quality luncheon for this event.

The jackpot at the Legion was awarded to Allen Ablett who won the big bingo prize on the last number to be called.

The setting was perfect for a lovely autumn wedding on Saturday, October 4. The hills surrounding the little white St. Margaret's church were in full fall colours and the air was cool. However, the sun hid behind the clouds, rain fell and the bridal party had to be escorted into the church with the protection of umbrellas. Nothing could dim the spirits of the many friends and relatives who had filled the church for this festive occasion. Blake Barnes accompanied his daughter Sharon, looking lovely in white gown, to the altar where she was joined in holy matrimony to Barry Agnew. Canon Moore Smith took the service. Other members of the wedding party were maid of honour Linda Gemmel of Lakefield, dressed in a burgundy coloured gown, bridesmaids Heather and Shelia Barnes, sisters of Sharon, Ann Elliot and Kathy Agnew, all looking beautiful in raspberry coloured dresses. Morris Elliot was the handsome best man. Mrs. Sylvia Cameron played the organ. After the wedding Blake and Adele Barnes with Ross and Vickie Agnew, parents of the couple, greeted their guests at a reception held in the Memorial Hall. A dance in the evening completed the celebration.

Don't miss the big dance that takes place Saturday evening October 11 at the Lloyd Watson Memorial Hall. The fun begins at 8 p.m., music by an Oompah band and a smorgasbord to provide special Octoberfest foods. Admission $3. a person.

Especially for the children is the puppet show coming to the library on October 11, Saturday afternoon beginning at 3:30 p.m. This is about a half hour show and will be shown by our friends the Deck Hands. They have something worth seeing line up that is called "Peter Rabbit" and "King Midas". Encourage the children to attend as they will enjoy this entertainment.

THANK YOU

My recent stay in Haliburton Red Cross Hospital made me realize how fortunate we are to have such a wonderful facility so conveniently located in our midst. The entire staff, nurses and doctors with their warm personal concern and professional expertise continually do all they can to comfort and care for us when we need it most. The cards, flowers and well wishes were greatly appreciated, thank you all.

Word has it there is an unofficial fund started to get a microwave oven for those who carry on this round-the-clock service. I'm sure any contribution in this direction would be most rewarding for all concerned.

Forever loved, husband Maurice 32-P-8

EMMERSON, Edith - who passed away suddenly October 7, 1978.

A Mother who gave me the best years of her life Who cherished my secrets, my sorrow, my strife Who taught me to love, who taught me to pray Dear Mother in Heaven, God bless you today. Your life was unselfish, for others you lived Not for what you received, but for what you could give. Just a loving thought, just a silent tear A beautiful memory of my Mother so dear For I love you and miss you As it ends the second year.

Too dearly loved to ever be forgotten, your daughter Melissa 32-P-8

EMMERSON, Edith - who passed away suddenly October 7, 1978.

God knew that she was suffering That the hills were hard to climb So He closed her weary eyelids And whispered, Peace be thine. Away in the beautiful hills of God By that valley of rest so fair Some day I know not when I will meet my loved one there.

Forever loved, husband Maurice 32-P-8

A DREAM COME TRUE FOR DALE & WANDA ANTHES

Being now retired innkeepers we have time to recall November 1964. Through an ad in the Echo, we found a beautiful piece of property on Maple Lake with an obsolete lodge and cabins in such a sad state of repair that there was absolutely no business left. That's when I had my dream of a resort Haliburton could be proud of, "A nice place for nice people". We would call it "Maple Sands".

In those days I was full of ambition and, as Wanda will tell you, I really liked a challenge. Yes, we bought the place and our dream inch by inch gradually came to be a reality. The "nice place" developed and the "nice people" came. Undesirables we never had room for.

The first years were tough and we owe a great deal to our friends, business associates and faithful employees that encouraged and helped us so much. We darn near didn't get open that first year. There was so much to do just to have the necessities ready in the few months before opening and things were dragging. I was ready to throw in the sponge but Wanda and our dear friend the late Hazel Peck, kept me going with their encouragement and tremendous help. MAPLE SANDS HAD TO OPEN and we were unpacking dishes after midnight to serve breakfast our first morning. Some of the roofs still leaked but somehow we made it.

Eventually the roofs stopped leaking and we became accustomed to "full house" situations continually. With better equipment and much improved facilities operating Maple Sands became much easier.

A final effort got my pet project, a modern sugar bush, into production this year to complete my dream.

Now the time has come for a new generation to take over and we welcome nephew Tom Anthes with his friends and associates Curtis and Brenda Eastmure. New plans are unfolding as they no doubt have enthusiastic dreams for the future too. We sincerely hope they enjoy the pleasure and satisfaction of seeing them all come true as Maple Sands goes onward and upward.

Late 1964 to 1980 was an era that we could write a book about. At a time when too many resorts were being closed or dismantled we thought you might like to hear about one that was snatched from the grave and became our dream come true.

Thanks again Haliburton!
